Vote To Retain The City Tax

The fate of the city income tax once more will rest with the voters Tuesday. The need for its continuance never has been more clear if the facts are examined in a realistic, unbiased manner.

As of Oct. 31, the tax this year alone had provided more than $253,000 for municipal operating purposes. These are some — not all — of the services that the city has been able to offer as a result of the tax:

Using a $7,000 appropriation from the tax funds, the city paid more than 50 per cent of the expense of a low-cost surfacing project on nearly 35 streets. The tax also provided $1,500 for oiling of dusty streets and $5,000 for a protective seal coat for streets previously blacktopped.

COUNCIL WAS ABLE TO appropriate $18,000 for preparation of plans for the proposed improvement of St. Clair Ave. between Princeton Ave. and the city limits.

A much-needed general pay increase for appointive city employes was approved.

A mechanical street sweeper that cleans paved thorofares on a regular schedule was purchased in 1962.

Funds have been used on many occasions to supplement the normal revenue of the street department, allowing increased services and avoiding overdrafts.

Firemen were provided with new "bunker gear" — protective coats, hats and boots.

Hospitalization, surgical and life insurance was provided for the city's 150 appointive employes by means of an $8,849 appropriation out of tax funds.

COUNCIL, IN FEBRUARY, appropriated $7,500 to finance the initial expense in preparing a "master plan" to guide the community's future growth and development.

East Liverpool became part of a Columbiana County Regional Planning Organization in May, paying its $230 per capita "dues" from income tax revenues.

Insurance protection against accidental injuries was provided all patrons at the Thompson Park municipal swimming pool, thanks to a $1,000 appropriation from tax revenue.

New snow-removal equipment that helps maintain traffic and clear parking spaces was financed principally from tax receipts.

Improvements at the Thompson Park baseball field, including a new fence and backstop.

All of the above, in addition to the proper handling of routine expenses, would not have been possible without the revenue realized from the city income tax.

ONE SHUDDERS TO THINK what would happen if the more than $253,000 suddenly were cut off because of repeal of the tax.

There could not help but be less police and fire protection; other municipal payrolls would face a slash; any hope of a general street improvement program would go down the drain; the city's physical property would be certain to suffer. In short, there would be an over-all curtailment of those operations so vital to a progressive community.

Were there less police and fire protection, the possibility of theft would increase and fire insurance rates could rise; if the city's streets were allowed to deteriorate further the wear and tear on automobiles would mount along with repair bills. All in all, the individual citizen quite likely would pay more in the long run than the cost of the tax. It would be false economy to vote out the levy.

Each time it has been placed before the people for a vote, The Review has supported the tax as the fairest and most logical way to meet our financial needs.

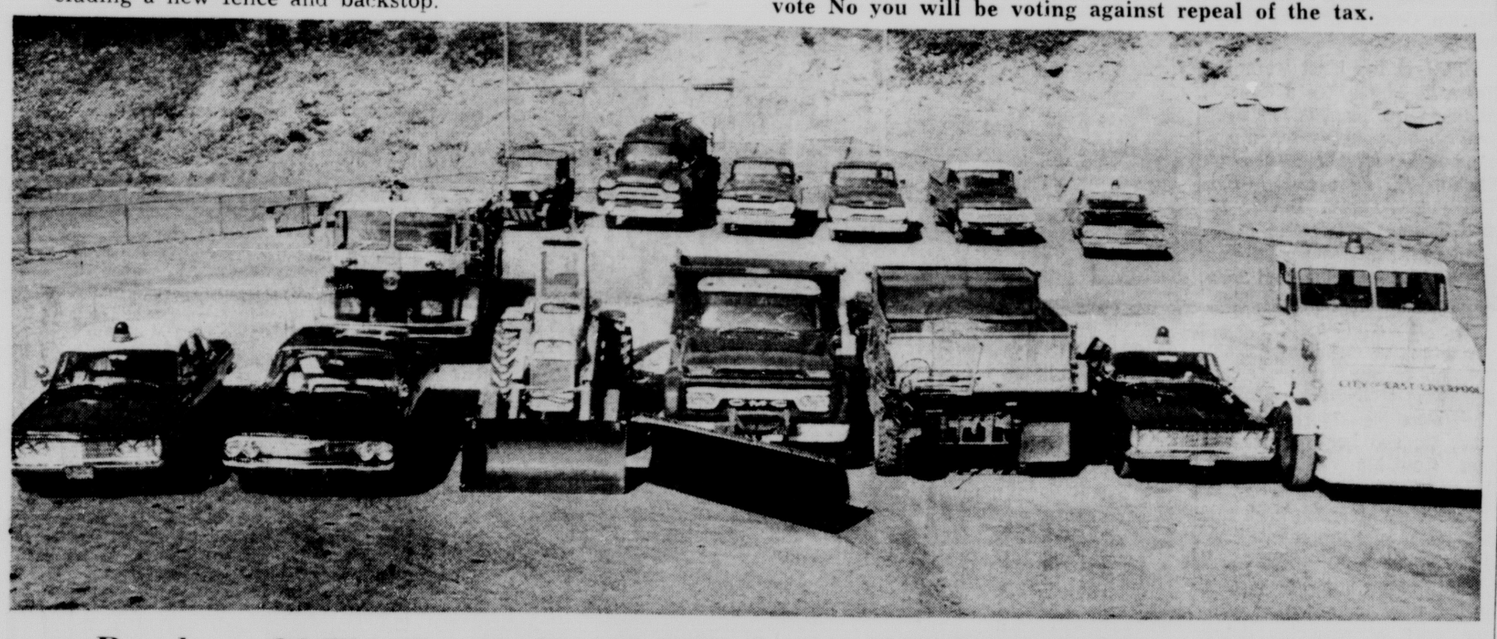

We feel more strongly than ever that continuance of the tax is most vital to the over-all welfare. Regardless of political promises, regardless of proposed economies, East Liverpool must have the revenue provided by the city income tax if it is to keep pace with other communities.

WITHOUT THE TAX, or some sensible substitute — and no one has come up with a better idea to date — it would be ridiculous to even think of attracting new industry or new anything else. Only those communities which have the courage to meet their own problems can hope to acquire the new plants which mean bigger payrolls and greater prosperity.

Loss of more than $253,000 a year by repeal of the city income tax would, in a sense, mean a return to the horse-and-buggy days. A general feeling of stagnancy would creep in, bringing decay rather than progress.

Vote to retain the city income tax Tuesday by placing an X opposite No on the ballot you will receive. When you vote No you will be voting against repeal of the tax.

County's Vote Tuesday May Total 30,000

City's Main Interest Is Mayor Bids

Issue Over Income Tax Also Municipal Ballot's Highlight

Columbiana County is expected to cast about 30,000 ballots, including 5,000 in East Liverpool, as it goes to the polls Tuesday to elect city, village, township and school district officials and act on 27 special questions and issues.

That forecast was issued today by Frank R. O'Hanlon, clerk of the County Election Board, who commented that voter interest seems to center on local bond issue and levy proposals, rather than on the candidates' races.

The county has a potential electorate of 70,000, including East Liverpool's 8,746 registered voters.

Cast 30,283 In 1961

Columbiana County cast 30,283 votes in the last comparable election in 1961.

In East Liverpool, interest will center primarily on a mayoralty fight between Merrill D. Hall, Republican, and Councilman Frank P. Duffy, Democrat, and the city's fifth vote on the municipal income tax question.

Voters will pick either Duffy or Hall to move into City Hall with a new administration Jan. 1, replacing Mayor Bert H. Goodballet, Democrat, after two terms.

Duffy, a veteran potter, and Hall, High School athletic director, top the list of 23 candidates seeking 12 municipal posts in the biennial election.

The mayoralty race will share interest with an initiative ordinance proposed by Trades and Labor Council which seeks to repeal the city income tax of eight - tenths of one per cent.

After Cease-Fire

Algerians' Guns Shell Moroccans

ALGIERS (AP)—A heavy Algerian artillery barrage erupted along the tense Algerian - Moroccan border at dawn today, several hours after a midnight cease-fire.

Mortar and cannon shells landed in the Figuig oasis on the Moroccan side of the border, and heavy machine-gun fire shattered the early morning quiet.

A Moroccan officer in the besieged oasis said he ordered his men to fire back.

"My men observed the ceasefire until attacked," said Col. Mohammed Hadda. He said his men evicted the Algerians from the oasis Friday.

The ceasefire, negotiated at a four-nation conference in Bamako, Mali, earlier this week, went into effect officially at midnight Friday.

Both King Hassan II of Morocco and President Ahmed Ben Bella of Algiers promised to observe the truce and allow a commision set up at the Bamako conference to supervise their Sahara border dispute.

Moroccan and Algerian troops remained dispersed along a 550-mile belt of the disputed area from Tindouf, an ore-rich town in the southwest, to Figuig, 215 miles south of the Mediterranean.

Hours before the midnight deadline, each side accused the other of violating the peaceful spirit of the Bamako conference.

East Liverpool had occasional flurries this morning as the mercury dropped below freezing but the flakes were more dense on the west side of the county and some parts of the state got up to 4 inches. Cleveland expected an inch.

The flurries were expected to alternate with occasional squalls

Diem, Brother Dead

Buddhists Lead New Viet Regime

TOKYO (AP) — Military rebels in Viet Nam announced today the death of President Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother Nhu, and proclaimed a new government led by Buddhists.

Some accounts filtering from South Viet Nam's capital — where thousands danced joyously in the streets — said the Ngo brothers committed suicide, others that they were shot to death.

Suicide was the story broadcast by the rebel-held Radio Saigon.

This terse account, as pieced together by diplomatic sources in Bangkok and in Washington, was that the 62-year-old chief executive and his brother, 52, killed themselves upon being recaptured after once escaping military custody.

A Bangkok diplomat said the two were reported to have swallowed poison on the way to jail in an armored car from a church in Saigon's Chinese quarter where they had taken refuge.

There was no independent confirmation. Some diplomats wondered whether the two would have so breached their Roman Catholic faith as to take that way out, for the church condemns suicide.

The American Broadcasting Co. (ABC) announced it had received word from its Saigon correspondent that a nervous officer shot the brothers after taking them into custody at the church.

Resume War Against Reds

U.S. Sees New Viet Rule 'Healing' Buddhist Rift

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States expects the new government in South Viet Nam to heal the rift with the country's Buddhist majority and speedily resume the war against the Communist guerrillas.

Officials here believe the revolutionary committee of generals which ousted the Diem regime has the widespread popular support necessary for success of the U.S.-backed war effort.

They contend the removal of President Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, stemmed from a conclusion by the Vietnamese army leadership that the Viet Cong could not be defeated under the Roman Catholic-oriented Diem government.

It was noted here that political prisoners, students and Buddhist monks and nuns, imprisoned under Diem and Nhu, were quickly released by the military leaders.

Elsa Maxwell, Hostess To Royalty, Dies At 80

NEW YORK (AP) — Elsa Maxwell the hostess to royalty whose humble beginning made hers the most unlikely modern-day climb to the top of the international social ladder, died Friday night at the age of 80.

Miss Maxwell succumbed to a heart ailment in New York Hospital only a few days after she was taken there a semi-invalid.

Her death was noted by the millions from all walks of life who knew and loved her, and by her legions of critics who over the years of her reign as the world's greatest party-giver fell victim to her tart tongue.

Almost to the end Miss Maxwell lived her life to the hilt, having made her last public appearance at the April in Paris Ball in a Manhattan hotel only last week.

She was brought to the ball in a wheelchair.

She wrote of her friends in the glistening social world in a gossipy newspaper column for the New York Journal-American

Thus has ended a life dedicated for many years to overcoming what Miss Maxwell found at the age of 12 to be the snobbish restrictions of high society.

One Ridicules Charge

3 Accused Spies Leave For Soviet

NEW YORK (AP)—Three accused Soviet spies expelled by the United States flew home to Russia Friday night after one ridiculed the espionage charges as "nonsense."

The one-word description was offered by Yuri A. Romashin, 28, third secretary of the Russian delegation to the United Nations, as he and two other delegation employes departed.

The State Department had requested that the three be booted out of the country. They could not be prosecuted here because of diplomatic immunity.

Besides Romashin, the other two are Gleb A. Pavlov, 39, a Soviet attache, and Vladimir I. Olenev, 37, identified only as a delegation employe. Their wives and Romashin's young daughter and Olenev's infant son left with them.

"I'm very glad to be going home," Romashin told reporters. "We send our best wishes to the America workers."

The FBI said the three Russians had conspired with an American engineer and a Soviet citizen who did not enjoy diplomatic immunity, to steal data on a "highly sensitive Air Force contract."

The latter two, Igor A. Ivanov, 33, a chauffeur for Amtorg, the Soviet trading agency, and U.S. citizen John W. Butenko, 38, of Orange, N.J., an engineer for the International Electric Corp., are being held by federal authorities for prosecution on spy charges.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy called off a trip to today's Air Force-Army football game in Chicago to remain in the White House in close touch with the situation in South Viet Nam.

Kennedy was meeting with his top advisers on the situation in South Viet Nam resulting from a coup which ousted President Ngo Dinh Diem.

Weathers First Senate Battle

Long Siege Looms Ahead For Foreign Aid Measure

WASHINGTON (AP)—A long siege appeared ahead today for the $3,817,365,000 foreign aid bill after weathering its first Senate battle enlivened with angry sniping.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen shook his head at the prospects. He envisioned senators "in their red flannel pajamas" sitting with their grandchildren in front of the tree Christmas Day and muttering to themselves: "We didn't finish foreign aid."

"It looks like we're in for a long siege" he said.

The Senate inched ahead Friday by rejecting, 46 to 29, a motion by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., to send the foreign aid measure back to the Foreign Relations Committee for major surgery.

"The fight has just started," Morse, a leader of the foreign aid revolt, said afterward.

Dirksen, however, called Friday's vote a "pretty good test."

Among Resolutions Adopted

Teacher Unit Asks Voice In School Board Policies

CLEVELAND (AP)—The North Eastern Ohio Teachers Association has adopted a resolution that teachers' organizations should have a voice in determining "policies of common concern" with boards of education.

The resolution was among several adopted Friday by delegates to NEOTA'S annual meeting, attended by 30,000. The group also voted to censure Gov. James A. Rhodes for "failure to live up to campaign promises to the schools," and to change convention procedure.

On determination of policy, a resolution introduced by Joseph H. Avellone of Cleveland said teachers' organizations should have some say so on such things as discussion of salaries and other conditions of professional service.

Teachers generally have been upset over failure of the governor to increase the state's formula in his budget for financial aid to schools. However, delegates did not go into detail concerning the governor's alleged failure to live up to his promises.

There were some misgivings on the convention floor about censuring Rhodes, and one NEOTA'S spokesman said that when the South Eastern Ohio Teachers Association passed a similar resolution recently, "the governor got so incensed that he won't talk to us any more."

Delegates voted to change the date of the business meeting to the Saturday before the convention, instead of trying to hold it on the same day as the convention. Wilbur Swartz of Berea, immediate past president of NEOTA, said a special committee has found the present plan kept delegates from attending other meetings going on at the same time.

Problems resulting from the huge influx of teachers also prompted a resolution stating that NEOTA area of at least one county might hold its own meeting under NEOTA direction.

In other action, delegates:

— Endorsed the state's $250 million bond issue.

— Urged that teachers get partial credit toward pensions for night and summer school work.

— Asked that the NEOTA Professional Problems Committee study success of the use of lay assistants in relieving teachers of clerical and other routine chores.

The convention elected Miss Anna Catherine Heiss of Elyria as NEOTA's next president. A graduate of the college of Wooster, she is head of the Business Education Department at Elyria High School. Other officers elected are H. Robert Polock of Wooster, vice president, and Miss Dorothy Jones of Sebring, recording secretary.

At a meeting of the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, which is an NEOTA department, delegates were told it has been indicated more fourth grade children were referred to mental health and phychiatric services for counseling because of classroom adjustment problems than for any other elementary grade.

Dr. Paul Torrance, professor of education at the University of Minnesota, said this was shown by a survey in Los Angeles and experience at the University of Minnesota.

Vance Packard, author of "The Pyramid Climbers," told a general session of NEOTA that teachers compete for their students' morality with "educational experts trained on Madison Avenue . . . who are trying to promote immature values in young people.

Akron Girl, 17, Crowned Miss Teen-Age America

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A living Doll—Judy by name—is the new Miss Teen-age America, but a bubbly sprite from Santa Rosa, Calif., Karen Valentine, has the first television contract.

It was a multi-ring circus Friday night, with a national TV audience estimated at 40 million in on the fun.

Judy Doll, 17, and a blue-eyed brunette representing Akron, Ohio was crowned 'teen queen for 1964 by Texas Gov. John Connally.

Judy's prizes include a four-year-scholarship to a college of her choice, a new car, a trip around the United States, 50 shares of stock in a soft drink company, and cosmetics and clothes.

Ex-Fireman Cites Cause Of Blaze In Court Offices

MEDINA, Ohio (AP)—A gas-fired heater was responsible for a fire in the Municipal Court offices that destroyed court records here last Feb. 16, a retired 40-year veteran of the Cleveland Fire Department told a Medina County Common Pleas Court jury Friday.

Bernard Mulcahy, former chief of the Cleveland Fire Prevention Bureau, was the first defense witness in the trial of Mrs. Ann Thiem, former deputy clerk in Medina Municipal Court, who is charged with setting the fire.

Mrs. Thiem pleaded guilty Monday to embezzling $720 in trust funds from the court. She is accused of starting the fire so that her shortages would not be discovered by state auditors.

Mulcahy said he had investigated hundreds of arson cases and that the Medina fire showed no evidence of being caused by an inflammable liquid, as the prosecution charged.

He disputed earlier testimony of Harold Carter, a state deputy fire marshal, who said the fire was started with either kerosene or gasoline.

Darrel C. Mayle of Elyria sought the amount from Robert McDaniel of Broadview Circle, East Liverpool, administrator of the estate of Thayer McDaniel, one of the drivers in the accident who was fatally injured.

Mayle had claimed negligence on the part of the deceased in causing the accident in which the defendant's father died.

Among Resolutions Adopted

Teacher Unit Asks Voice In School Board Policies

CLEVELAND (AP)—The North Eastern Ohio Teachers Association has adopted a resolution that teachers' organizations should have a voice in determining "policies of common concern" with boards of education.

The resolution was among several adopted Friday by delegates to NEOTA'S annual meeting, attended by 30,000. The group also voted to censure Gov. James A. Rhodes for "failure to live up to campaign promises to the schools," and to change convention procedure.

On determination of policy, a resolution introduced by Joseph H. Avellone of Cleveland said teachers' organizations should have some say so on such things as discussion of salaries and other conditions of professional service.

Teachers generally have been upset over failure of the governor to increase the state's formula in his budget for financial aid to schools. However, delegates did not go into detail concerning the governor's alleged failure to live up to his promises.

There were some misgivings on the convention floor about censuring Rhodes, and one NEOTA'S spokesman said that when the South Eastern Ohio Teachers Association passed a similar resolution recently, "the governor got so incensed that he won't talk to us any more."

Delegates voted to change the date of the business meeting to the Saturday before the convention, instead of trying to hold it on the same day as the convention. Wilbur Swartz of Berea, immediate past president of NEOTA, said a special committee has found the present plan kept delegates from attending other meetings going on at the same time.

Problems resulting from the huge influx of teachers also prompted a resolution stating that NEOTA area of at least one county might hold its own meeting under NEOTA direction.

In other action, delegates:

— Endorsed the state's $250 million bond issue.

— Urged that teachers get partial credit toward pensions for night and summer school work.

— Asked that the NEOTA Professional Problems Committee study success of the use of lay assistants in relieving teachers of clerical and other routine chores.

The convention elected Miss Anna Catherine Heiss of Elyria as NEOTA's next president. A graduate of the college of Wooster, she is head of the Business Education Department at Elyria High School. Other officers elected are H. Robert Polock of Wooster, vice president, and Miss Dorothy Jones of Sebring, recording secretary.

County's Vote Tuesday May Total 30,000

135 votes in its last test at the polls in 1961.

In addition to a mayor, East Liverpool will elect a Council president, treasurer, auditor, solicitor, three councilmen - at-large and four ward councilmen. Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff's post is the only one not at stake. He is in a six-year term that will run out at the end of 1965.

Both parties chose their slates at the primaries May 8. Because of the defeat of incumbents at the primaries or officials running for posts other than those they now occupy, at least five of the 12 municipal offices will have new occupants next year.

Sought 3rd Term

Mayor Goodballet was seeking his third term when he lost to Duffy in the Democratic primary. Duffy, a veteran employe of the Harker China Co., is serving his first term as an at-large member of Council.

Noted especially for his opposition to the city income tax, he previously served seven years as president of Trades and Labor Council. He resides at 1623 Holliday St.

Hall, a teacher for 35 years, resides at 219 Pennsylvania Ave. He also is a former High School basketball coach. Hall, in entering the primary, said he would resign his school post, if elected, to give full time to the mayor's duties.

Both Hall and Duffy won three-way races in the primaries.

2 Seek Presidency

The Council presdient's seat now occupied by Charles N. Edwards, veteran Mulberry St. barber, is sought by Councilman George E. Willshaw, the GOP nominee, and Arch H. Smith, 925 McKinnon Ave., the Democratic contender.

Smith is general shipping foreman in the finishing division of the Midland Works of the Crucible Steel Co. A resident of East Liverpool since 1914 and an Army Medical Corps Veteran of Worid War II, he sought the post unsuccessfully two years ago. Smith defeated Edwards in the Democratic primary.

Edwards resigned, effective last Thursday.

Willshaw, a resident of Idaho Ave., now is in his fourth term as councilman-at-large. An employe of the Standard Oil Co., he heads the Council finance committee.

Only One Incumbent

With Willshaw and Duffy bidding for other posts, only one incumbent - at - large councilman is seeking a new term.

He is Councilman Robert W. Sample Jr. of McKinnon Ave., Republican. His service totals 11 years as an at-large member and Third Ward representative. Sample is a Crucible employe.

His runningmates are William Y. Orr of Princeton Ave., veteran furniture company employe who previously served three terms as Second Ward Councilman, and A. Stanley Kidder, 2112 Michigan Ave., who formerly served both as First Ward representative and an at-large member. Kidder is a Crucible employe.

2 Served Previously

The three Democratic candidates for at - large memberships include two men with prior service.

The nominees are Norman R. Bucher, 818 Bradshaw Ave.; Donald S. Hancock, 1450 Pennsylvania Ave., and James V. Flasco, 1837 Idaho Ave., former chairman of the city Democratic Central Committee and former roller rink proprietor.

Both Bucher and Hancock are Crucible employes and both served as councilmen-at-large in 1959-60.

City Auditor Lawrence C. Applegate is bidding for a second four-year term on the Democratic ticket, opposed by Council Clerk Lawrence J. Zollinger, 108 W. 5th St., the Republican nominee. Zollinger retired after 37½ years as a clerical employe at Crucible. Renominated without opposition, Applegate resides at 1119 St. George St.

Out For 11th Term

Bidding for his 11th term, Treasurer Bert A. Dawson, Republican, is opposed by Leo Payne of Riverside Park, a retired Crucible employe who is chairman of the city Democratic Central Committee. Dawson resides at 1814 Lisbon St. He is dean of boys at the High School.

Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper, assured of election to a seventh term, is the only candidate on either ticket without opposition. Cooper, a Democrat, resides on North St.

Three of the four incumbent ward councilmen are seeking new terms.

After 2nd Term

Councilman Kenneth C. Berg of the Second Ward, a Republican, also is asking his second term. The Democratic nominee is James F. Cunningham, 149 Reynolds St., an employe of the production and planning department at Crucible. Berg resides at 730 Bradshaw Ave. He is a liner at the Homer Laughlin China Co.

Berg now is a patient at the Oakland Veterans Hospital in Pittsburgh awaiting surgery.

In the Third Ward, the incumbent is S. James Welch, 1008 St. John St., also a Republican and also bidding for a second term. The Democratic nominee is Donald E. Smith of Woodbine Ave., Gardendale.

Smith, a Crucible employe, held the Second Ward Post in 1960-61. Welch was employed at the former Edwin M. Knowles China Co. He now is a laboratory employe at the American Vitrified Products Co.

A former councilman also is a candidate for the Fourth Ward seat, now held by Edward B. Massey, who was defeated in the Democratic primary.

He is Robert G. Duncan, 575 Williams Ave., a Republican who served two terms as Fourth Ward representative. Duncan is a Crucible employe.

His Democratic opponent is William E. Davis, 713 Edwards Ave., who defeated Massey in the primaries. Davis has been employed at Crucible 18 years.

Safety Radio Halt May End At Wellsville

There is a slim possibility that Wellsville's police and fire departments will have radio communications before the weekend is over.

City officials are awaiting a letter from the Federal Communications Commission on a previous request that an extension be granted to allow the use of the present "wide band" radio sets.

Mayor William Daugherty said Solicitor William Bush mailed the request for the waiver of the FCC ruling Monday. The mayor said he received a call Friday from Rep. Wayne L. Hays' office at Washington that the extension had been granted for six months and a letter to that effect was mailed Thursday.

The radios were turned off at midnight Thursday by both departments. Police Chief John Hephner and Fire Chief Robert Lewis said they would not operate the radios without proper authorization from the FCC.

The FCC in a ruling issued five years ago said fire and police departments had to operate on separate frequencies on the "narrow band" by Oct. 31 of this year.

The city has never purchased new equipment.

Solicitor Bush said today he had not received any reply in the morning mail.

It wouldn't be wise to resume operations until it is learned what conditions, if any, the FCC will place on the use of the radios in the extension, if it is granted.

City Council will meet Tuesday night at 7:30 to act on legislation to transfer $3,000 from the parking meter fund for the purchase of new radios. This will not be enough and no mention has been made as to where the balance will come from.

The Board of Control has readvertised for new bids on the necessary equipment. They will be opened Nov. 15. Alternate bids are being sought for both leasing and purchasing the equipment.

Adult Goblins Fined After Tomato Toss

Halloween pranks like tossing tomatoes at passing autos can be costly fun, four Hancock County men learned Friday night.

Charged with littering the highway, they were fined $20 and costs each by Squire Harry Lytton of Newell, and one paid an additional fine of $50 and costs for resisting arrest.

George Stillwagon, 43, and Charles Gale, 34, groom and trainer at Waterford Park, respectively, Joe Graham, 23, of Newell, and Roy Cave, 25, a jockey at Waterford Park, were fined for littering the highway after pleading guilty.

Cave was also fined $50 and costs when convicted by Squire Lytton of a charge of resisting arrest, to which he pleaded innocent.

Deputy Roger Cline of the Hancock County sheriff's office and Grant District Constable J. Carl Durham of Newell nabbed Stillwagon along Route 66 after a tomato had splashed against Durham's cruiser.

They later obtained warrants and arrested the other three. Cave objected and was charged with resisting arrest, officers said.

The quartet had been throwing tomatoes at cars from a gravel pit along Route 66 south of Newell Thursday night, deputies said. Stillwagon was nabbed after a foot chase, and the others apparently fled. Officers estimated three bushels of tomatoes was used in the prank, judging by the amount littering the highway.

Stillwagon posted bond before Squire John D. Herron of New Cumberland, who turned the cases over to Squire Lytton.

Tillman Golphin of Youngstown was fined $5 and costs on a charge of failure to have his auto under control. His car was involved in a three-car "chain reaction" crash Thursday on Washington St.

The driving permit of Donald E. Martin, 16, of Columbiana R.D. 2 was suspended for 30 days for reckless operation.

Bess and Wright were cited by Wellsville police and the others by the State Highway Patrol.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE CITIZENS OF BEAVER LOCAL

Dear Parents:

A decision will be made on Nov. 5, which can be of major importance to your child and all other children enrolled in the Beaver Local Schools.

On that day, you and other citizens of the community will be asked to express your opinion on a 7 mill Levy. Your Board of Education and your P.T.A. recommend the passage of this levy to raise teachers' salaries, buy needed supplies, up to date books, etc., and to defray general operational expenses. Did you know that our teacher's salary schedule is the lowest in the county? Did you know that it takes 26 buses to haul our children to the various schools, and that only 2 of our old buses were replaced this year. We should have replaced 4 buses.

A quality Educational Program is most essential to the boys and girls of today — probably more so than ever before. The most vital single ingredient of a quality educational program is the classroom teacher. Your support of this levy is solicited in order that your Board of Education may continue to employ and retain Staff Members who can offer a Quality Educational Program to your children — your most valuable possession.

135 votes in its last test at the polls in 1961.

In addition to a mayor, East Liverpool will elect a Council president, treasurer, auditor, solicitor, three councilmen - at-large and four ward councilmen. Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff's post is the only one not at stake. He is in a six-year term that will run out at the end of 1965.

Both parties chose their slates at the primaries May 8. Because of the defeat of incumbents at the primaries or officials running for posts other than those they now occupy, at least five of the 12 municipal offices will have new occupants next year.

Sought 3rd Term

Mayor Goodballet was seeking his third term when he lost to Duffy in the Democratic primary. Duffy, a veteran employe of the Harker China Co., is serving his first term as an at-large member of Council.

Noted especially for his opposition to the city income tax, he previously served seven years as president of Trades and Labor Council. He resides at 1623 Holliday St.

Hall, a teacher for 35 years, resides at 219 Pennsylvania Ave. He also is a former High School basketball coach. Hall, in entering the primary, said he would resign his school post, if elected, to give full time to the mayor's duties.

Both Hall and Duffy won three-way races in the primaries.

2 Seek Presidency

The Council presdient's seat now occupied by Charles N. Edwards, veteran Mulberry St. barber, is sought by Councilman George E. Willshaw, the GOP nominee, and Arch H. Smith, 925 McKinnon Ave., the Democratic contender.

Smith is general shipping foreman in the finishing division of the Midland Works of the Crucible Steel Co. A resident of East Liverpool since 1914 and an Army Medical Corps Veteran of World War II, he sought the post unsuccessfully two years ago. Smith defeated Edwards in the Democratic primary.

Edwards resigned, effective last Thursday.

Willshaw, a resident of Idaho Ave., now is in his fourth term as councilman-at-large. An employe of the Standard Oil Co., he heads the Council finance committee.

Only One Incumbent

With Willshaw and Duffy bidding for other posts, only one incumbent - at - large councilman is seeking a new term.

He is Councilman Robert W. Sample Jr. of McKinnon Ave., Republican. His service totals 11 years as an at-large member and Third Ward representative. Sample is a Crucible employe.

His runningmates are William Y. Orr of Princeton Ave., veteran furniture company employe who previously served three terms as Second Ward Councilman, and A. Stanley Kidder, 2112 Michigan Ave., who formerly served both as First Ward representative and an at-large member. Kidder is a Crucible employe.

2 Served Previously

The three Democratic candidates for at - large memberships include two men with prior service.

The nominees are Norman R. Bucher, 818 Bradshaw Ave.; Donald S. Hancock, 1450 Pennsylvania Ave., and James V. Flasco, 1837 Idaho Ave., former chairman of the city Democratic Central Committee and former roller rink proprietor.

Both Bucher and Hancock are Crucible employes and both served as councilmen-at-large in 1959-60.

City Auditor Lawrence C. Applegate is bidding for a second four-year term on the Democratic ticket, opposed by Council Clerk Lawrence J. Zollinger, 108 W. 5th St., the Republican nominee. Zollinger retired after 37½ years as a clerical employe at Crucible. Renominated without opposition, Applegate resides at 1119 St. George St.

Out For 11th Term

Bidding for his 11th term, Treasurer Bert A. Dawson, Republican, is opposed by Leo Payne of Riverside Park, a retired Crucible employe who is chairman of the city Democratic Central Committee. Dawson resides at 1814 Lisbon St. He is dean of boys at the High School.

Solicitor Joseph W. Cooper, assured of election to a seventh term, is the only candidate on either ticket without opposition. Cooper, a Democrat, resides on North St.

Three of the four incumbent ward councilmen are seeking new terms.

After 2nd Term

Councilman Kenneth C. Berg of the Second Ward, a Republican, also is asking his second term. The Democratic nominee is James F. Cunningham, 149 Reynolds St., an employe of the production and planning department at Crucible. Berg resides at 730 Bradshaw Ave. He is a liner at the Homer Laughlin China Co.

Berg now is a patient at the Oakland Veterans Hospital in Pittsburgh awaiting surgery.

In the Third Ward, the incumbent is S. James Welch, 1008 St. John St., also a Republican and also bidding for a second term. The Democratic nominee is Donald E. Smith of Woodbine Ave., Gardendale.

Smith, a Crucible employe, held the Second Ward Post in 1960-61. Welch was employed at the former Edwin M. Knowles China Co. He now is a laboratory employe at the American Vitrified Products Co.

A former councilman also is a candidate for the Fourth Ward seat, now held by Edward B. Massey, who was defeated in the Democratic primary.

He is Robert G. Duncan, 575 Williams Ave., a Republican who served two terms as Fourth Ward representative. Duncan is a Crucible employe.

His Democratic opponent is William E. Davis, 713 Edwards Ave., who defeated Massey in the primaries. Davis has been employed at Crucible 18 years.

Safety Radio Halt May End At Wellsville

There is a slim possibility that Wellsville's police and fire departments will have radio communications before the weekend is over.

City officials are awaiting a letter from the Federal Communications Commission on a previous request that an extension be granted to allow the use of the present "wide band" radio sets.

Mayor William Daugherty said Solicitor William Bush mailed the request for the waiver of the FCC ruling Monday. The mayor said he received a call Friday from Rep. Wayne L. Hays' office at Washington that the extension had been granted for six months and a letter to that effect was mailed Thursday.

Let The Employers Decide

Ever since Ohio Sen. Frank J. Lausche made a bid for perpetual unpopularity by opposing a pay raise for government officials, including members of Congress we have been pondering the moral issue he described.

It is whether senators and representatives should be asking what they can make the government do for them, or whether they should be asking what they can do for the government. Hmm.

Sen. Lausche pointed out that if legislators voted themselves more money they would be plagued by demands for pay increases in all areas of government service. But where he really cracked the whip was doubting publicly that a raise from the present $22,500 to $35,000, plus the same prerequisites would improve the quality of congressmen.

This is what we've been pondering. Sen. Lausche thinks there are hundreds of people who would replace representatives and senators for the money they're getting now. All well and good, but there's more to it than that.

The hundreds of willing replacements would be the same as the people they'd be trying to replace, because political service in the high echelons has turned into a closed society that cannot be entered at will by newcomers. The only way to qualify for a card of admittance is to go through the chairs, thus making it a certainty that all card-bearers will be compatible.

Whether they are paid $22,500, $35,000, or $250,350 is relatively unimportant. It is how they qualify that counts, not how much they can earn when they've made the grade.

And did it ever occur to our public servants who want a raise that we — their employers — should decide not they — the employes?

Pair Of Strange Bedfellows

Samuel Lubell the opinion sampler has told an Oberlin audience the Republican party can win the 1964 presidential election on the civil rights issue.

He refers to the growing opinion that the Solid South is the only place where traditional political loyalties can be shifted and to the possibility they might be shifted widely enough to offset the advantage that being in office gives to President Kennedy when bidding for a second term.

Reporter Magazine deals with the same possibility in its current issue, with a view to the effect on national politics in 1968 as well as 1964. "The result of critical elections in 1964 or 1968 may well be the emergence of political parties more emotionally opposed to each other than in the past," it declares, discussing the probability that Sen. Barry Goldwater's point of view would have an effect on party alignments in 1968 regardless of what happened in 1964. This assumes that Sen. Goldwater will be given the Republican nomination.

The question that comes to mind in these projections of political probability is how northern Republicans, with a heritage of liberalism from Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt, ever could get into the same bed with the South's Thurmonds, Eastlands, Sparkmans, Hills, Byrds, Russells et all the civil rights issue.

Republicans cannot be expected to answer this question offhand. They don't know. For 30 years they have wondered how the coalition of Northern and Southern Democrats kept from flying apart.

The only explanation is that they were held together by a common desire for political power. Perhaps that is the only explanation needed. It explains all the strange-bedfellow combinations that occur in national politics.

If Democrats could stand the Solid South for 30 years, Republicans could not up with it for the same high stakes. The two-party system works because it pits the outs against the ins in a fluid battle for survival at the polls, not because either party locks itself into an ideology.

Sen. Fulbright Attacks French Policies

By DAVID LAWRENCE

An unprecedented method of attack has been employed to influence Gen. de Gaulle to change the policies of the French government so they will be more pleasing to the United States government.

David Lawrence

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., who is chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the United States Senate, has made a speech that expressed views which, it might have been expected, would be uttered only by the president or secretary of state. For the executive branch of the government has heretofore jealously guarded its prerogative to conduct foreign relations.

It's conceivable, of course that the Fulbright speech was cleared in advance by the Department of State for it would seem incredible that a speech of this importance, attacking an allied government, would be made without the knowledge and consent of the executive branch of our government. But is President de Gaulle now to regard the Fulbright speech as the expression of the United States government?

Sen. Fulbright's words were bluntly expressed. He said, for instance:

"It's on this level of practical cooperation that French policy has been deeply disappointing to France's allies. It's a policy which, if long continued, could lead to the disruption of the Western Alliance, not by open repudiation but by abnegation in detail."

THIS IS a very serious charge to be leveled at the head of a government allied with the United States. But more surprising is the statement that France's policy has been disappointing not only to the United States but to France's other allies.

This will be disputed to some extent in Europe, but in this country it will be wondered why the chairman of the Foreign Relations committee of the Senate is privileged to speak in behalf of any of the Allied governments.

When the leader in the French or British Parliaments makes a speech, he is talking as the head of both the government and the legislative branch but in the United States, where Congress and the executive are separate institutions, it has always been taken for granted that communications to other governments would be handled only by the president or the secretary of state.

Another surprising thing about the speech is that it was given on Oct. 30, but discussed statements made by President de Gaulle at a news conference on July 29 last. It thus has the apperanace of a carefully prepared attack, which may have been assigned to Sen. Fulbright to carry out.

This will not assist in the solving of difficulties between the United States and France. In fact, within the last 24 hours, word has come from Paris that President de Gaulle has abandoned any idea of visiting the United States during the next several months, as had been previously reported.

Perhaps the most extraordinary part of the Fulbright speech is that in which he directed his remarks at President de Gaulle personally. Chairman Fulbright said:

"I don't believe that President de Gaulle is disposed at present to take such a dispassionate view of American policy. One perceives in his remarks of July 29 that he is still looking at America through the distorting prism of wounded pride."

IT'S SIGNIFICANT that in this same speech the Arkansas senator made a reference to France's unpaid debt from World War I to the United States. The total still unpaid, together with interest, amounts to more than $6 billion, of which $4.3 billion was due as of June 30, 1963. Mr. Fulbright referred to it as a "default since June, 1933."

This reminder that France owes the United States money was followed by Mr. Fulbright's remark that the United States "has not demanded payment of the World War I debts of France and other European countries. It was not indicated whether the demand may yet be made.

The exact purpose of mentioning World War I debts is not clear, though Sen. Fulbright argued that meeting the debt due would help the "balance of payments" situation.

The whole purpose of the Fulbright speech was ostensibly to persuade Gen. de Gaulle to liberalize his trade policies. It remains to be seen whether this form of attack will be persuasive with the strong-minded head of the French government.

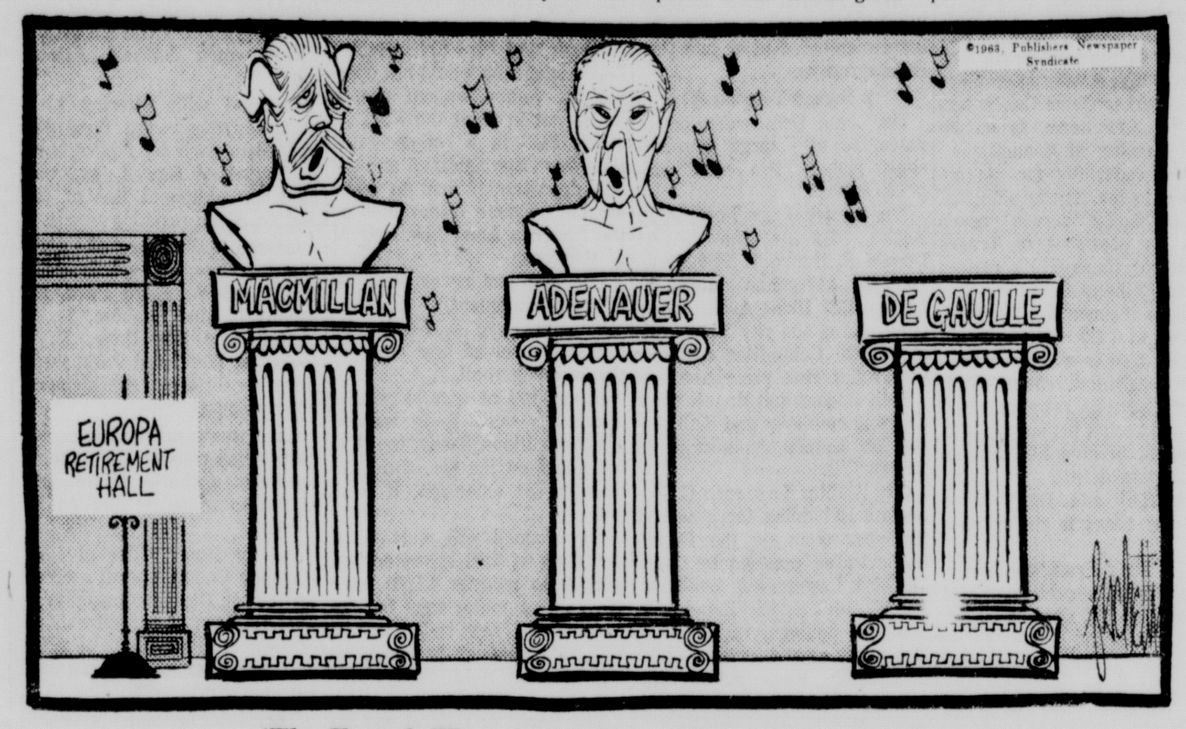

While Sen. Fulbright asserted that the United States has not the slightest intention of standing aside if Europe is attacked and overrun, and although he reiterated that this country is committed "unalterably to the defense of Europe," he pointed out that the more likely occurrence would be a Soviet "assault on the United States from which Europe would be spared."

MR. FULBRIGHT insisted that Europe, including France, must commit itself to a unified defense of the West. He added that, while the United States is committed to such a defense, "this does not mean that it cannot be driven from Europe." He declared:

"If our partners pursue protectionist trade policies and decline to carry a proportion of the military and foreign aid burdens commensurate with their resources, the United States will be left with no choice but to reduce its commitments."

This is to say the least, a most unusual commentary on the policies of an allied government and specifically on the attitude of the head of that government. Certainly it doesn't make negotiation easier, and it's an undiplomatic way to conduct the foreign relations of the United States.

The question also arises whether it makes superfluous the two American ambassadors in Paris — one accredited to the French government and the other to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

'The French They Are A Funny Race, They Put Up Pedestals Without A Face, Hinky, Dinky, Parlay Voo.'

Kindly Hold The Applause

It will take time to learn the score in South Viet Nam, but it looks as if Central Intelligence Agency has won the game.

Something bad has happened to the regime of Ngo Dinh Diem, which is what the United States has been devoutly wishing for in official statements. Whatever has happened either was the direct or indirect result of CIA activities in Vietnamese affairs, or if it wasn't, the United States has been wasting its taxpayers' money.

The question now is — apropos of U.S. taxpayers' money — what will follow the collapse of the Diem government, if that's what has happened. It is one thing to pull out the rug from under a government that doesn't deserve to stay in power. It is another thing to set up a new government that does deserve to stay in power.

This has been a quandary for the United States throughout its participation in international power politics. It has found out time and time again that helping to topple governments is easier than setting up replacements — in the Dominican Republic, Cuba Viet Nam itself, Cambodia. Republic of Congo, even good neighbor Canada.

Until everything has worked itself out and a new Vietnamese government acceptable to the Kennedy administration and all right-thinking parties concerned has come into being and proved it can do the job, the audience will kindly hold its applause.

Any Questions?

Like the preacher who is against sin, each of us is against communism. Our opposition to Communism is an article of faith, not subject to debate.

But there is one question that must be asked? What is the communism we are against?

Is it the communism of Stalin, Lenin, Khrushchev, Mao Tse-tung, Fidel Castro, Earl Browder, the French communists, or the Italian communists?

Communists themselves cannot get together on the communism they are for, which puts us non-communists at a loss to know what we are against. Perhaps we're against all kinds of Communists. It's not the idea but the people who quarrel over the idea.

AT THIS MOMENT, the Soviet Communist party, which is split inside itself, is appealing to all other Communist parties to decide whether Moscow or Peking is following the true faith. There are 86 of these organized Communist parties in the world. Moscow Communists claim they have 65 in their corner. Whether the other 21 are in Peking's corner is not known.

What further confuses the matter is the easily ascertainable fact that neither Moscow nor Peking ever has dared to get all the way into pure Marxism, which is what many people believe they are against when they say they're against communism.

The only place in the world where pure Marxism ever was tried was in the communist communities experimented with in the United States, such as Zoar. So much for communism.

What we anti-communists are really against is the authoritarian rule that characterizes all governments which foist varying versions of so-called communism on masses of people—the police state.

What we need to comprehend is that we would be shifting from the frying pan to the fire if we ever let ourselves be deceived into thinking we had to fight communism by consenting to a police state to wage the battle.

THAT WAS HOW Hitler and his bullyboys regimented the German krauts—by telling them the only way to fight communism was to accept the strong-arm rule of National Socialism.

That was how Messy Mussolini set himself up in business—by fighting communists with fascism. That was the way Trujillo coned the United States into supporting one of the bloodiest regimes in Latin America.? He said he was fighting communism by bullying Dominicans. That was how Batista did it in Cuba, too.

Each of us is against communism. It's an article of faith. No one asks for particulars.

But what we're against—we anti-communists—is being pushed around by bullyboys, some of whom call themselves communists.

If anyone else tries it, we're against them, too. Any questions?

Cameramen's Local Pickets Moonport

Strike-fever has been seeping around the edges of America's only "moonport." This base, from which the first trip to the moon is scheduled to begin in some six years, is on Merritt Island, at the end of a causeway near Cape Canaveral. The vast Earth depot is under construction although 11 rail unions have been threatening to tie up the works as they did some six weeks ago. They've delayed their strike action. Nonetheless, the other day pickets strode before one of the moon base entrances.

Victor Riesel

However, the pickets were not from the 11 strong rail unions, but from a tiny outfit known as the Florida section of Chicago's Local 666 of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes (IATSE).

They also picketed Cape Canaveral and Patrick Air Force Base. There was much commotion in that section in that section—and in White House and Labor Department circles, not to mention the Pentagon and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration brainstorming centers.

THERE IS AGITATION because it took President Kennedy's personal intervention to keep the powerful rail brotherhoods from tying up the supply lines to the "moonport."

Now along comes a unit of 95 cameramen and throws up seven picket lines. Some construction workers and the sister stagehands' Local 780, which is made up of special camera repairmen, respected the lines. In all, there were 180 men out.

These are the technicians who are responsible for a filmed case study of each rocket and missile, each thrust at the planets, each go-round of the astronauts.

The cameramen see to it that IGOR—the Tracking Telescope Instrument Optical Recorder—and ROTI—the Recording Optical Tracking Instrument—operate and bring back good film when recovered at sea.

These are instruments which provide photographic memories of events on missile flights occuring beyond seeing limits of shorter focal length motion picture systems.

For some time now Local 666 has had a good record. It has observed the Cape Canaveral no-strike pledge.

In past crises the stagehands' national leader, Dick Walsh, has come down personally and kept negotiations going for as long as three days and three nights.

BUT THIS TIME his efforts were futile. He denounced the Local 666 strike. He notified the authorities—and the national labor leadership—that little could be done because the walkout was unauthorized by his national office in New York.

There has been a change in mood. The cameramen negotiate with their employer — Radio Corp. of America (RCA).

The current bargaining has been going on for three months. There were some 35 issues put on the table by the local union.

Few, if any, have been taken off by the labor side.

Yet these cameramen and technicians, who also develop and interpret some of the high-flying film, are among the establishment's highest paid employes. Their base pay ranges from $160 to $188. This does not include bonuses and special pay and overtime rolled up when they go down the range, up in helicopters and to the boon docks and remote island stations.

They work far more steadily than their fellow members in the IATSE locals whose jurisdiction is earth-bound entertainment. Yet they hit the picket line, despite the sensitivity of their work and the international significance of the Apollo moon project.

THE SEVEN picket lines are not the only sign of their changed mood and new militancy. They also are interested in organizaing other cameramen and technicians who are not in any union. These latter operators, employed by other firms, print and analyze highly secret film. They, too, are well paid.

The militant locals also want to unionize still other cameramen who are on hush-hush work aboard the special science ships which track and go down the range for very highly classified reasons.

The camera local appears to be treating all this as a normal trade union situation—as though the alrady interrupted "moonport" construction work was a pretzel factory operation.

There are times, and there are defense and scientific efforts, which require the easing of normal trade union practices. The Merritt Island project is one such national endeavor. We don't want to get to the moon only to discover that we have to go through Soviet customs there.

The special presidential board looking into earlier strike theats at Merritt Island reported to him that disruption there would "raise grave implications for the future." That was in reference to the big rail unions. Now along come 95 men and pull a strike.

Small wonder there is growing sentiment among the public for compulsory arbitration of critical labor disputes.

The people are fed up. Who can blame them?

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW:

Next Tuesday the voters of East Liverpool will decide whether our city will go forward or backward by the way they vote on the city income tax.

East Liverpool is at the crossroads. If our people retain the tax, we can go forward with the master plan and other plans to benefit our city — also make better streets.

If our voters decide against the income tax, we will probably have to lay off many fireman and policeman and discontinue many services that we have been accustomed to.

Before we had the income tax put into law, you can remember that the Pleasant Heights and Northside fire stations were closed for lack of money to keep them going. The pay raise that was given to our city employes will probably have to be cut back to where it was before and many services will have to be discontinued.

I think the income tax is a fair tax. If you don't work, you don't pay any tax. Our Senior Citizens who draw social security benefits don't pay any tax on their benefits.

If our city goes forward we will have to have a better attitude toward our city by our people.

I have had people ask me where the money from the tax goes. We have had rising costs every year since 1946 and that was 17 years ago. And every year the cost goes upward and it takes a lot of money to run a city.

I am in favor of the income tax because the city of East Liverpool needs the money and I want our city to go forward, with progress, prosperity and happiness for our people.

I have lived in East Liverpool for many years. East Liverpool has been good to me. I have worked in the retail trade in East Liverpool for about 45 years.

We are at the crossroads now. Shall we go forward or backward? East Liverpool needs the income tax. Don't let her down. Please vote to retain the city income tax.

Let The Employers Decide

Ever since Ohio Sen. Frank J. Lausche made a bid for perpetual unpopularity by opposing a pay raise for government officials, including members of Congress we have been pondering the moral issue he described.

It is whether senators and representatives should be asking what they can make the government do for them, or whether they should be asking what they can do for the government. Hmm.

Sen. Lausche pointed out that if legislators voted themselves more money they would be plagued by demands for pay increases in all areas of government service. But where he really cracked the whip was doubting publicly that a raise from the present $22,500 to $35,000, plus the same prerequisites would improve the quality of congressmen.

This is what we've been pondering. Sen. Lausche thinks there are hundreds of people who would replace representatives and senators for the money they're getting now. All well and good, but there's more to it than that.

The hundreds of willing replacements would be the same as the people they'd be trying to replace, because political service in the high echelons has turned into a closed society that cannot be entered at will by newcomers. The only way to qualify for a card of admittance is to go through the chairs, thus making it a certainty that all card-bearers will be compatible.

Whether they are paid $22,500, $35,000, or $250,350 is relatively unimportant. It is how they qualify that counts, not how much they can earn when they've made the grade.

And did it ever occur to our public servants who want a raise that we — their employers — should decide not they — the employes?

Pair Of Strange Bedfellows

Samuel Lubell the opinion sampler has told an Oberlin audience the Republican party can win the 1964 presidential election on the civil rights issue.

He refers to the growing opinion that the Solid South is the only place where traditional political loyalties can be shifted and to the possibility they might be shifted widely enough to offset the advantage that being in office gives to President Kennedy when bidding for a second term.

Reporter Magazine deals with the same possibility in its current issue, with a view to the effect on national politics in 1968 as well as 1964. "The result of critical elections in 1964 or 1968 may well be the emergence of political parties more emotionally opposed to each other than in the past," it declares, discussing the probability that Sen. Barry Goldwater's point of view would have an effect on party alignments in 1968 regardless of what happened in 1964. This assumes that Sen. Goldwater will be given the Republican nomination.

The question that comes to mind in these projections of political probability is how northern Republicans, with a heritage of liberalism from Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt, ever could get into the same bed with the South's Thurmonds, Eastlands, Sparkmans, Hills, Byrds, Russells et all the civil rights issue.

Republicans cannot be expected to answer this question offhand. They don't know. For 30 years they have wondered how the coalition of Northern and Southern Democrats kept from flying apart.

The only explanation is that they were held together by a common desire for political power. Perhaps that is the only explanation needed. It explains all the strange-bedfellow combinations that occur in national politics.

If Democrats could stand the Solid South for 30 years, Republicans could not up with it for the same high stakes. The two-party system works because it pits the outs against the ins in a fluid battle for survival at the polls, not because either party locks itself into an ideology.

Sen. Fulbright Attacks French Policies

By DAVID LAWRENCE

An unprecedented method of attack has been employed to influence Gen. de Gaulle to change the policies of the French government so they will be more pleasing to the United States government.

David Lawrence

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., who is chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee of the United States Senate, has made a speech that expressed views which, it might have been expected, would be uttered only by the president or secretary of state. For the executive branch of the government has heretofore jealously guarded its prerogative to conduct foreign relations.

It's conceivable, of course that the Fulbright speech was cleared in advance by the Department of State for it would seem incredible that a speech of this importance, attacking an allied government, would be made without the knowledge and consent of the executive branch of our government. But is President de Gaulle now to regard the Fulbright speech as the expression of the United States government?

Sen. Fulbright's words were bluntly expressed. He said, for instance:

"It's on this level of practical cooperation that French policy has been deeply disappointing to France's allies. It's a policy which, if long continued, could lead to the disruption of the Western Alliance, not by open repudiation but by abnegation in detail."

THIS IS a very serious charge to be leveled at the head of a government allied with the United States. But more surprising is the statement that France's policy has been disappointing not only to the United States but to France's other allies.

This will be disputed to some extent in Europe, but in this country it will be wondered why the chairman of the Foreign Relations committee of the Senate is privileged to speak in behalf of any of the Allied governments.

When the leader in the French or British Parliaments makes a speech, he is talking as the head of both the government and the legislative branch but in the United States, where Congress and the executive are separate institutions, it has always been taken for granted that communications to other governments would be handled only by the president or the secretary of state.

Another surprising thing about the speech is that it was given on Oct. 30, but discussed statements made by President de Gaulle at a news conference on July 29 last. It thus has the apperanace of a carefully prepared attack, which may have been assigned to Sen. Fulbright to carry out.

This will not assist in the solving of difficulties between the United States and France. In fact, within the last 24 hours, word has come from Paris that President de Gaulle has abandoned any idea of visiting the United States during the next several months, as had been previously reported.

Perhaps the most extraordinary part of the Fulbright speech is that in which he directed his remarks at President de Gaulle personally. Chairman Fulbright said:

They work far more steadily than their fellow members in the IATSE locals whose jurisdiction is earth-bound entertainment. Yet they hit the picket line, despite the sensitivity of their work and the international significance of the Apollo moon project.

THE SEVEN picket lines are not the only sign of their changed mood and new militancy. They also are interested in organizaing other cameramen and technicians who are not in any union. These latter operators, employed by other firms, print and analyze highly secret film. They, too, are well paid.

The militant locals also want to unionize still other cameramen who are on hush-hush work aboard the special science ships which track and go down the range for very highly classified reasons.

The camera local appears to be treating all this as a normal trade union situation—as though the alrady interrupted "moonport" construction work was a pretzel factory operation.

There are times, and there are defense and scientific efforts, which require the easing of normal trade union practices. The Merritt Island project is one such national endeavor. We don't want to get to the moon only to discover that we have to go through Soviet customs there.

The special presidential board looking into earlier strike theats at Merritt Island reported to him that disruption there would "raise grave implications for the future." That was in reference to the big rail unions. Now along come 95 men and pull a strike.

Small wonder there is growing sentiment among the public for compulsory arbitration of critical labor disputes.

The people are fed up. Who can blame them?

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR OF THE REVIEW:

Next Tuesday the voters of East Liverpool will decide whether our city will go forward or backward by the way they vote on the city income tax.

East Liverpool is at the crossroads. If our people retain the tax, we can go forward with the master plan and other plans to benefit our city — also make better streets.

If our voters decide against the income tax, we will probably have to lay off many fireman and policeman and discontinue many services that we have been accustomed to.

Before we had the income tax put into law, you can remember that the Pleasant Heights and Northside fire stations were closed for lack of money to keep them going. The pay raise that was given to our city employes will probably have to be cut back to where it was before and many services will have to be discontinued.

I think the income tax is a fair tax. If you don't work, you don't pay any tax. Our Senior Citizens who draw social security benefits don't pay any tax on their benefits.

If our city goes forward we will have to have a better attitude toward our city by our people.

I have had people ask me where the money from the tax goes. We have had rising costs every year since 1946 and that was 17 years ago. And every year the cost goes upward and it takes a lot of money to run a city.

I am in favor of the income tax because the city of East Liverpool needs the money and I want our city to go forward, with progress, prosperity and happiness for our people.

I have lived in East Liverpool for many years. East Liverpool has been good to me. I have worked in the retail trade in East Liverpool for about 45 years.

We are at the crossroads now. Shall we go forward or backward? East Liverpool needs the income tax. Don't let her down. Please vote to retain the city income tax.

Business Figure Convicted, Faces Prison And Fine

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—A former Cleveland business executive faces a possible 10 - year prison term and $10,000 fine — or both—following his conviction on charges of receiving stolen government property.

William S. Clark, 51-year-old former vice president of Clark Cable Corp., Cleveland, was convicted in U. S. District court here Friday night by a jury of six men and six women.

Judge Carl A. Weinman ordered a pre-sentence investigation and deferred sentencing. Rowan Greer, Clark's attorney, said there will be an appeal.

Clark was accused of receiving 34 cartons of microfilmed engineering drawings from James L. Redd of Fairborn, who has admitted stealing them from Wright-Patterson Air Force Base. The government claimed Clark knew they had been stolen.

Clark Cable has been awarded many government contracts in recent years, and the drawings that were stolen reportedly could have supplied the firm with information about its competitors. Clark denied he opened the cartons, and said his company gained nothing from them.

The trial required four days of testimony, and the jury deliberated seven hours. Judge Weinman continued Clark's $1,000 bond.

LET'S FACE FACTS!
I'm sure you have caught yourself complaining about East Liverpool in general. For instance it's officials, or the condition of some of the streets. I'm sure you've even complained about the empty store rooms that are mounting every day, how "dead" the town is, the parking situation, and the fact that there is nothing to do in town—no activity! There should not be any question in your mind, nor is there in mine, that there should be more activity for the young people. You've even remarked to your neighbor that East Liverpool is "going to the dogs." Well, I've complained, too, and now I want to do something about it. I'm willing to try. Why don't you try too, by casting your vote —

Business Figure Convicted, Faces Prison And Fine

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—A former Cleveland business executive faces a possible 10 - year prison term and $10,000 fine — or both—following his conviction on charges of receiving stolen government property.

William S. Clark, 51-year-old former vice president of Clark Cable Corp., Cleveland, was convicted in U. S. District court here Friday night by a jury of six men and six women.

Judge Carl A. Weinman ordered a pre-sentence investigation and deferred sentencing. Rowan Greer, Clark's attorney, said there will be an appeal.

Clark was accused of receiving 34 cartons of microfilmed engineering drawings from James L. Redd of Fairborn, who has admitted stealing them from Wright-Patterson Air Force Base. The government claimed Clark knew they had been stolen.

Clark Cable has been awarded many government contracts in recent years, and the drawings that were stolen reportedly could have supplied the firm with information about its competitors. Clark denied he opened the cartons, and said his company gained nothing from them.

The trial required four days of testimony, and the jury deliberated seven hours. Judge Weinman continued Clark's $1,000 bond.

LET'S FACE FACTS!
I'm sure you have caught yourself complaining about East Liverpool in general. For instance it's officials, or the condition of some of the streets. I'm sure you've even complained about the empty store rooms that are mounting every day, how "dead" the town is, the parking situation, and the fact that there is nothing to do in town—no activity! There should not be any question in your mind, nor is there in mine, that there should be more activity for the young people. You've even remarked to your neighbor that East Liverpool is "going to the dogs." Well, I've complained, too, and now I want to do something about it. I'm willing to try. Why don't you try too, by casting your vote —

Spoken Latin Ineffective For Various Nationalities

This is another in the series of special articles Bishop John Mussio of the Steubenville Diocese is writing for The Review while he attends the Vatican Council in Rome.

By BISHOP MUSSIO

ROME — One thing I have learned in this Council is that Latin — at least when spoken— is not an effective means for international communication.

When written, it could perhaps succeed inasmuch as the eye can follow the layout of words without the distractions the ear must suffer. When spoken, Latin is heard with all the inflections, accent and habit of voice coming with each national background.

When the French speak Latin it is hard to differentiate their Latin from their French. The Italians carry over their own hurried musical style of language into their Latin.

The Spaniards are the hardest of all to follow in Latin. At one session, Cardinal Spellman finished speaking and a Spanish bishop sitting next to me remarked that he couldn't understand the cardinal from New York. I wanted to tell him that I couldn't understand any except the American speakers.

When evening comes and we receive translated copies of the speeches then we have a full idea of what has been said. Cardinal Cushing has been a champion in the Council to get a system of simultaneous translation installed, similar to that in the United Nations.

The tomb of Pope John is drawing large crowds who kneel before it in prayer. A Baptist minister from Cincinnati has said that when Pope John died, the Baptist Church made him their saint whether or not the Catholic Church decided to canonize him.

One of the Russian Orthodox archbishops, an observer at the Council, went to Pope John's tomb, prayed there for a while and placed upon it a garland of flowers.

A common saying among the bishops on their way to daily Council sessions is that "they are going to school." We have our books under our arms; we go to our assigned places in the basilica, and the ringing a bell tells us that the school day is beginning. We have a roll call by means of a ballot.

Each bishop marks a ballot which carries his seat number. These ballots go through an IBM machine and shortly afterwards the presiding chairman knows who are present and who are absent. The secretary makes the announcements including naming the speakers for that particular day. These are to be our teachers. We sit and learn for four hours.

Although there is no official recess period, the bishops often slip away for awhile to attend the coffee shops located on both sides of St. Peter's Basilica interior. But even here the discussions continue along with making many fine contracts with bishops from all over the world. Recesses often comes to a quick close when the discussions continue along for all bishops to return for a vote.

During the debate on the Church, several American bishops spoke on matters affecting our country quite intimately. One asked that words which might reflect upon the American principle of separation of Church and State be deleted. He spoke of the harmonious spirit engendered by this principle in the United States.

Another urged that one section of the scheme contain the idea that race or social status is no bar to full participation in the rights of man. Both remarks were greeted by applause from the Counciliar Fathers.

5 Free On Bond

Integration Leaders Plan To Continue Rights Work

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP)—Five integration leaders plan to continue working for civil rights now that they are free on bond under an unprecedented federal court order which struck down two Georgia laws.

The five spent nearly three months in jail in this south-Georgia farming center before they were released Friday. They said they were not mistreated.

John Perdew, 21, a white Harvard University student from Denver, Colo., reported demonstrations will be resumed in Americus "if they're necessary."

Others told of intentions to continue work in the Negro voter registration movement and in attempting to organize a Negro farmers cooperative.

The three white men and two Negroes were freed in a 2-1 order by a three-judge panel. The court retained jurisdiction and recessed until after Dec 1.

The ruling voided a 19th century insurrection law — which carried a maximum penalty of death—and an unlawful assembly statute.

If upheld the order would set a precedent for civil rights demonstrators to go directly to federal court with complaints of excessive bond.

Another significant facet of the order was injunctive restraint against the prosecution of peace warrants, a legal weapon which has come into play recently in fighting integration efforts.

Released on bond of $2,500 in addition to Perdew were Donald Harris, 23, of New York; Ralph W. Allen, 22, of Melrose, Mass.; and Thomas McDaniel, 19, of Americus. Bond of $500 was signed for Zev Aelony, 25, of Minneapolis.

Released on $500 bond each were three Americus Negroes, Sallie Mae Durham, 14, and Artis and Marvin Brown. The girl had been denied bail by juvenile court authorities. The two men had been in jail since August, charged with resisting arrest, disorderly conduct and failing to obey officers.

The five leading integration workers—Perdew, Harris, Allen, McDaniel and Aelony — were jailed at the height of street demonstrations which resulted in more than 200 arrests as Negroes sought to break segregation barriers.

Spoken Latin Ineffective For Various Nationalities

This is another in the series of special articles Bishop John Mussio of the Steubenville Diocese is writing for The Review while he attends the Vatican Council in Rome.

By BISHOP MUSSIO

ROME — One thing I have learned in this Council is that Latin — at least when spoken— is not an effective means for international communication.

When written, it could perhaps succeed inasmuch as the eye can follow the layout of words without the distractions the ear must suffer. When spoken, Latin is heard with all the inflections, accent and habit of voice coming with each national background.

When the French speak Latin it is hard to differentiate their Latin from their French. The Italians carry over their own hurried musical style of language into their Latin.

The Spaniards are the hardest of all to follow in Latin. At one session, Cardinal Spellman finished speaking and a Spanish bishop sitting next to me remarked that he couldn't understand the cardinal from New York. I wanted to tell him that I couldn't understand any except the American speakers.

When evening comes and we receive translated copies of the speeches then we have a full idea of what has been said. Cardinal Cushing has been a champion in the Council to get a system of simultaneous translation installed, similar to that in the United Nations.

The tomb of Pope John is drawing large crowds who kneel before it in prayer. A Baptist minister from Cincinnati has said that when Pope John died, the Baptist Church made him their saint whether or not the Catholic Church decided to canonize him.

One of the Russian Orthodox archbishops, an observer at the Council, went to Pope John's tomb, prayed there for a while and placed upon it a garland of flowers.

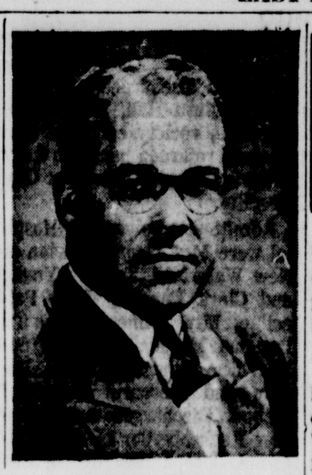

A common saying among the bishops on their way to daily Council sessions is that "they are going to school." We have our books under our arms; we go to our assigned places in the basilica, and the ringing of a bell tells us that the school day is beginning. We have a roll call by means of a ballot.

Each bishop marks a ballot which carries his seat number. These ballots go through an IBM machine and shortly afterwards the presiding chairman knows who are present and who are absent. The secretary makes the announcements including naming the speakers for that particular day. These are to be our teachers. We sit and learn for four hours.

Although there is no official recess period, the bishops often slip away for awhile to attend the coffee shops located on both sides of St. Peter's Basilica interior. But even here the discussions continue along with making many fine contracts with bishops from all over the world. Recesses often comes to a quick close when the discussions continue along for all bishops to return for a vote.

During the debate on the Church, several American bishops spoke on matters affecting our country quite intimately. One asked that words which might reflect upon the American principle of separation of Church and State be deleted. He spoke of the harmonious spirit engendered by this principle in the United States.

Another urged that one section of the scheme contain the idea that race or social status is no bar to full participation in the rights of man. Both remarks were greeted by applause from the Counciliar Fathers.

5 Free On Bond

Integration Leaders Plan To Continue Rights Work

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP)—Five integration leaders plan to continue working for civil rights now that they are free on bond under an unprecedented federal court order which struck down two Georgia laws.

The five spent nearly three months in jail in this south-Georgia farming center before they were released Friday. They said they were not mistreated.

John Perdew, 21, a white Harvard University student from Denver, Colo., reported demonstrations will be resumed in Americus "if they're necessary."

Others told of intentions to continue work in the Negro voter registration movement and in attempting to organize a Negro farmers cooperative.

The three white men and two Negroes were freed in a 2-1 order by a three-judge panel. The court retained jurisdiction and recessed until after Dec 1.

The ruling voided a 19th century insurrection law — which carried a maximum penalty of death—and an unlawful assembly statute.

If upheld the order would set a precedent for civil rights demonstrators to go directly to federal court with complaints of excessive bond.

Another significant facet of the order was injunctive restraint against the prosecution of peace warrants, a legal weapon which has come into play recently in fighting integration efforts.

Released on bond of $2,500 in addition to Perdew were Donald Harris, 23, of New York; Ralph W. Allen, 22, of Melrose, Mass.; and Thomas McDaniel, 19, of Americus. Bond of $500 was signed for Zev Aelony, 25, of Minneapolis.

Released on $500 bond each were three Americus Negroes, Sallie Mae Durham, 14, and Artis and Marvin Brown. The girl had been denied bail by juvenile court authorities. The two men had been in jail since August, charged with resisting arrest, disorderly conduct and failing to obey officers.

The five leading integration workers—Perdew, Harris, Allen, McDaniel and Aelony — were jailed at the height of street demonstrations which resulted in more than 200 arrests as Negroes sought to break segregation barriers.

He told newsmen the final bill "will be reasonably close" to the compromise amendment he and Mansfield offered Thursday when they proposed a $385-million reduction in the $4.2-billion bill reported by the Foreign Relations Committee.

Dirksen ridiculed Morse's suggestion that something might be accomplished by a second look by a committee which had the bill since the middle of June and held 18 markup sessions.

Morse's motion would have instructed the committee to report the bill back no later than Nov. 8, Dirksen noted, but then the Senate still would have to deal with a batch of amendments Morse has proposed.

More than 50 proposed amendments await action.

There was one break in leadership ranks. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, assistant Democratic leader, told the Senate Friday night he would fight the proposed compromise cut from $650 million to $525 million in funds for the Alliance for Progress program in Latin America.

Humphrey was not in on a huddle at which Mansfield, Dirksen and ranking Republican and Democratic members of the Foreign Relations Committee worked out the compromise in an effort to head off heavier cuts.

Weather

through tonight. There was no prediction of any accumulation.

There was snow mixed with rain at times but no icing developed on streets or highways.

The snow was about a week late — in 1962 it fell Oct. 25.

But there was no question that pleasant autumn weather was at end.

The mercury fell below freezing downtown this morning for the first time this season — going to 31 at 7 a. m. — and tonight's low range will be 25 to 32.

A number of rigs were observed passing through the city early today with snow-encrusted cabs.

The thieves twisted the accessories off, breaking the screws off in the doors, he told police.

Ruth Davidson of Shadyside Ave. said a wheel, tire and hubcaps were taken from her 1957 auto while it was parked in an open garage between 10 p.m. Thursday and 11 a. m. yesterday.

M. & A. Motors, 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., said four hubcaps valued at $35 were stolen from a convertible parked in their used car lot between Thursday night and yesterday morning.

Next meeting is Nov. 15 at 7 p.m., according to Richard Mason, clerk.

Midland Boys Alert Firemen On Blaze

Alert action by two youngsters was credited by firemen with holding damage to a minimum in a fire at the storage shed at the 7th St. playground at Midland Friday afternoon.

Anthony Presutti and Arthur Pate, both 13, were playing nearby when they noticed the blaze. They tried to extinquish it with dirt, then ran to a nearby home to phone the fire department, which responded with 12 men and two trucks.

Scouts To Complete Goodwill Bag Drive

Boy Scouts of the Columbiana County Council were to complete their "Good Turn Day" today by picking up bags distributed last Saturday for the Goodwill Industries.

The entire county was covered and the scouts will assemble the bags so the Goodwill trucks can pick them up.

Any person with large items to donate should advise the boys and they will see that it is collected within a few days by the welfare project truck.

Any person missed should contact a scout in his area if they wish to donate, Bennett Taylor, scout executive, said.

"Here's where this man tries to do the job all by himself.

The homer tied the score at 1-1.

Chester Squire Fines 2 Drivers In Mishaps

Two drivers cited by the Hancock County sheriff's office after traffic mishaps were fined $10 and costs each at hearings Thursday night before Chester Squire W. Eugene Allison.

The oldest American sport is lacrosse, which was played by the North American Indians as a part of tribal war maneuvers long before this land was discovered. As the Indians played it, they whacked one another more often than they did the ball. The French Canadians toned down the game with some definite rules about 1840 and called it lacrosse because the curved, webbed stick resembled a bishop's crozier.

He told newsmen the final bill "will be reasonably close" to the compromise amendment he and Mansfield offered Thursday when they proposed a $385-million reduction in the $4.2-billion bill reported by the Foreign Relations Committee.

Dirksen ridiculed Morse's suggestion that something might be accomplished by a second look by a committee which had the bill since the middle of June and held 18 markup sessions.

Morse's motion would have instructed the committee to report the bill back no later than Nov. 8, Dirksen noted, but then the Senate still would have to deal with a batch of amendments Morse has proposed.

More than 50 proposed amendments await action.

There was one break in leadership ranks. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, assistant Democratic leader, told the Senate Friday night he would fight the proposed compromise cut from $650 million to $525 million in funds for the Alliance for Progress program in Latin America.

Humphrey was not in on a huddle at which Mansfield, Dirksen and ranking Republican and Democratic members of the Foreign Relations Committee worked out the compromise in an effort to head off heavier cuts.

through tonight. There was no prediction of any accumulation.

There was snow mixed with rain at times but no icing developed on streets or highways.

The snow was about a week late — in 1962 it fell Oct. 25.

But there was no question that pleasant autumn weather was at end.

The mercury fell below freezing downtown this morning for the first time this season — going to 31 at 7 a. m. — and tonight's low range will be 25 to 32.

A number of rigs were observed passing through the city early today with snow-encrusted cabs.

Ruth Davidson of Shadyside Ave. said a wheel, tire and hubcaps were taken from her 1957 auto while it was parked in an open garage between 10 p.m. Thursday and 11 a. m. yesterday.

M. & A. Motors, 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., said four hubcaps valued at $35 were stolen from a convertible parked in their used car lot between Thursday night and yesterday morning.

The oldest American sport is lacrosse, which was played by the North American Indians as a part of tribal war maneuvers long before this land was discovered. As the Indians played it, they whacked one another more often than they did the ball. The French Canadians toned down the game with some definite rules about 1840 and called it lacrosse because the curved, webbed stick resembled a bishop's crozier.

Community Business Firms Renew Sponsorship Of Impressive Weekly Church Message For The 12th Straight Year!

Shall I force my child to go to Sunday School and Church?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Yes, definitely!

Startled? Why? How do you answer Lucy when she comes to the breakfast table and announces, "I'm not going to school today!" You know, Lucy goes.

How do you answer when Lucy comes in besmudged with dirt and says, "I'm not going to take a bath!" You know, Lucy bathes.

How do you answer when Lucy, threatened with illness, says, "I'm not going to take that medicine!" You know, she takes it.

Why all this timidity, then, in the realm of spiritual guidance and moral training? Going to wait and let her decide what Church she'll go to when she's old enough? Don't fool yourself. By that time she'll probably believe that a decision neglected by her parents during her first twenty years might not be necessary at all. You didn't wait until she was "old enough" to decide she should go to school.

Afraid she'll later succumb to the old story about ". . . too much religion when I was young . . . parents made me go?" This tale is obviously false. Just because she takes a bath tonight doesn't mean she'll discontinue them at the age of twenty-one.

What shall I say to Lucy when she announces she doesn't like Sunday School and Church? That's easy. Be consistent.

By firmness and example you can show her that church-going is a necessity. And in later years, she will thank you for bringing into her life the greatest values a mature person can possess — Christian habits and ideals.

Att: Edward F. Hester

Dear Sir:

For a number of years I have watched with interest your weekly series of church attendance messages published in your paper, and since ascending the bench that interest has doubled.

I understand that business firms throughout the city have contributed with their time and money toward promoting regular church attendance.

This Court daily meets with problems of the home, and, of course, we feel that the home, the school, and the church are the basic roots of our society. Each plays its respective, important function. Your encouragement of the people to aid in the church of their choice in East Liverpool, and then support its activities, contribute much to the well-being of this community.

With deep interest may I express the importance of church affiliation; and to you and those in the community who make it possible to bring this message, my sincere and deep thanks is extended.

Sincerely yours,

Samuel M. Chertoff, Judge
E. Liverpool Municipal Court

SMC/ps

This community is indeed fortunate in having, among its citizens, businessmen and women who willingly share in a host of opportunities to add their time, talents and treasures to further the development, progress and improvement of East Liverpool and surrounding areas.

Good things don't just happen — progress isn't assured by business acceleration alone — no, no doubt about that! The moral and economic growth of any city or area depends entirely upon men and women who live beyond themselves, accepting responsibilities and making contributions wherever and however they can.

Community Business Firms Renew Sponsorship Of Impressive Weekly Church Message For The 12th Straight Year!

Shall I force my child to go to Sunday School and Church?

Yes, definitely!

Startled? Why? How do you answer Lucy when she comes to the breakfast table and announces, "I'm not going to school today!" You know, Lucy goes.

How do you answer when Lucy comes in besmudged with dirt and says, "I'm not going to take a bath!" You know, Lucy bathes.

How do you answer when Lucy, threatened with illness, says, "I'm not going to take that medicine!" You know, she takes it.

Why all this timidity, then, in the realm of spiritual guidance and moral training? Going to wait and let her decide what Church she'll go to when she's old enough? Don't fool yourself. By that time she'll probably believe that a decision neglected by her parents during her first twenty years might not be necessary at all. You didn't wait until she was "old enough" to decide she should go to school.

Afraid she'll later succumb to the old story about ". . . too much religion when I was young . . . parents made me go?" This tale is obviously false. Just because she takes a bath tonight doesn't mean she'll discontinue them at the age of twenty-one.

What shall I say to Lucy when she announces she doesn't like Sunday School and Church? That's easy. Be consistent.

By firmness and example you can show her that church-going is a necessity. And in later years, she will thank you for bringing into her life the greatest values a mature person can possess — Christian habits and ideals.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL • ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Att: Edward F. Hester

Dear Sir:

For a number of years I have watched with interest your weekly series of church attendance messages published in your paper, and since ascending the bench that interest has doubled.

I understand that business firms throughout the city have contributed with their time and money toward promoting regular church attendance.

This Court daily meets with problems of the home, and, of course, we feel that the home, the school, and the church are the basic roots of our society. Each plays its respective, important function. Your encouragement of the people to aid in the church of their choice in East Liverpool, and then support its activities, contribute much to the well-being of this community.

With deep interest may I express the importance of church affiliation; and to you and those in the community who make it possible to bring this message, my sincere and deep thanks is extended.

Sincerely yours,

Samuel M. Chertoff, Judge

City Girl Due Hearing For Theft Of Cars

A 16-year-old East Liverpool girl is due for a hearing Monday morning in Juvenile Court at Lisbon on an auto theft charge stemming from a spree in which she allegedly stole two other cars before being nabbed Wednesday by the State Highway Patrol near Powhatan. an.

County Juvenile Office James Miller said the girl is at the County Jail after being returned yesterday from St. Clairsville.

The spree started Sunday, Miller said, when the girl accompanied by a 15-year-old companion, both wards, left the Juvenile Receiving Home in East Palestine and took the 1954 auto of Mrs. Pearl M. Sutherin, 914 Bacon Ave., a part-time employe at the home.

Dropping off the 15-year-old in East Liverpool, the older girl continued to Chester and picked up her half-sister and then headed for Weirton.

But Gasser's daughter immediately notified police the car was missing and the State Highway Patrol picked up the two girls seven minutes after they left Powhatan.

Police said the girls face counts of grand larceny in Belmont County. Miller said he is not certain of the disposition of the half - sister but police indicated she was released in custody of her parents.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Sister Helps Brother Study Latin

It's wonderful when an older child often reads to a baby brother or sister under school age. Doing so helps the older one read better, gives pleasure to the younger and furthers kindly relations between them. It may be still more wonderful when an older child helps a younger brother or sister with his lessons, especially when the helper is skillful and the helpee warmly welcomes the assistance. Last summer I saw something which struck me as unusual and it warmed my heart — a girl, 15, helping her brother, 13, with Latin one hour each evening for three weeks during their vacation. Her own grades at school have been practically all A's.

Dr. Garry Meyers

THE BROTHER barely passed his Latin last school year. Looking ahead, she brought along from their home his Latin textbook.

Nobody else proposed this program. It was her idea. And her brother accepted the idea and plodded on hard and faithfully with her evening after evening.

However, he indicated that he would not be grieved if any evening were omitted!

The sister, in her senior year at high school, says she is going to be a teacher. So far as I could ascertain, she is now a very skillful teacher of her brother.

On the evening before they left for home this young teacher told me with enthusiasm that her brother had made wonderful progress.

Last year, at their home, she tried to enlist her next oldest brother in similar work on German, in which he was getting rather low grades. But she failed to win his cooperation and gave up.

AS YOU CAN see, the situation was different. Rarely will an older brother or sister choose to be helped by a younger one. He or she feels too inferior then.

Let me remind my fellow parents never to urge a younger child to tutor an older brother or sister. Even when you are helping one of your children with any lesson, this child may be greatly irked if a younger brother or sister butts in or volunteers to answer a question for the child you are helping.

It's well to make it a rule, when you are helping one child at reading, spelling or the like, not to have a younger child present if this younger one could read or spell better.

Back to the case of the older sister helping her younger brother:

SUCH PROCEDURE has limitless possibilities. Here is an area in which parents and teachers might find a challenge to their own skills and genius. They need not wait till the children are in high school to begin. They can lay the foundation for success in this direction long before either child enters school.

My bulletins, "Helping Our Children Succeed at School", "Preventing and Reducing Jealousy" and "Celebrate Your Child's Successes" may be secured by sending a self - addressed stamped envelope to me in care of The Review.

YORK, Maine (AP) — Rear Adm. Alan Banister, who retired in 1958 after a 30-year career in the Navy, mostly in the submarine service, died Friday.

New Carrier

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

To Let Pact On Conventional Type

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

—:—

CARRIER: The Navy expects to award the contract for the new conventional carrier approved by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara not later than next May.

A spokesman gave this word today when asked about invitation for bids for carrier No. CVA 67. He added that a decision was made some months ago to build the attack carrier in a private yard.

Congress provided funds for building the carrier a year ago. The Navy subsequently asked McNamara to approve an atomic-powered carrier. A week ago he issued orders to go ahead with a standard-powered carrier.

STATUS OF WOMEN: President Kennedy has set up two groups in and out of government to improve the lot of the nation's women.

By executive orders Friday, the President created a citizens advisory council on the status of women and a special interdepartmental committee to coordinate governmental efforts in the field.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz will head the government group.

MOHOLE: Sen. John O. Pastore, chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, has suggested that Russia and other nations be invited to take part in Project Mohole.

The Rhode Island Democrat expressed the idea during a Senate Appropriations subcommittee's hearing Friday on a request for funds for the project. Mohole estimated to cost $68 million, calls for drilling holes deep in the ocean bottom to penetrate the earth's mantle and study its core.

Pastore said that since the project's fruits are to be shared by all, other nations might well share in its execution and costs.

HOME BUILDING: Sales of new one-family houses in August were 59,000—6 per cent lower than in July but 16 per cent above a year earlier.

Statistics released by the Census Bureau and the Housing and Home Finance Agency Friday put the medium price of houses sold in August at $18,200.

The number of new homes available for sale at the end of August was 263,000, an increase of about 6 per cent above the previous month.

The census bureau also estimated that for October new private construction amounted to $4.2 billion—2 per cent less than in September.

Atty. Elliott's Speaker

95 At County Rally Of Salineville GOP

SALINEVILLE — Winding up pre - election activities, the Salineville Republican Club held a countywide rally Friday night at the school cafeteria with 95 attending.

Atty. Kenneth Leishman, member of the Ohio Public Utilities Commission, was chairman of the program, which opened with prayer and pledge of allegiance. Fourteen musicians of the Southern Local Band played selections and refreshments were served.

County and state officials attended, including Robert Bell, 18th District committeeman, and secretary, Ford McQuilkin, both of Steubenville; Rep. Clarence Wetzel, County Commissioner Walter Hunston, Recorder Richard Brian, Atty. Charles Pike county GOP chairman, and others.

Wetzel, Bell, Bryan and Pike spoke briefly, and Atty. Donald Elliott of Rogers was principal speaker, discussing "Conservatism In Government."

He pointed out the effect of taxation on working people, commented about the tuberculosis problem in the state and county, and urged support of State Issue No. 1 in Tuesday's balloting.

He said the issue, a 250 million bond issue to be paid from the cigarette tax, will benefit two Columbiana County projects — the Highlandtown park and lake, and development of the Beaver Creek State Park. He is chairman of the Columbiana County Forest and Parks Council and a member of the County Board of Health.

Wetzel also referred to the state bond issue and its benefits if approved. Hunston explained the three county levies on Tuesday's ballot, for tuberculosis control and for child welfare services.

Leishman introduced local candidates, Howard Wolfe, for mayor; Harry Randolph, for Washington Township trustee, and Eugene Webster and Don Hirst, incumbent trustees, and Howard Goddard, incumbent on the Board of Public Affairs.

William Hill spoke on behalf of Mrs. Effie Potts, active in GOP affairs who was unable to be present.

Mrs. Sarah Ahlborn, secretary, reported membership has reached 135.

There were representatives present from clubs in East Palestine, Seubenville, East Liverpool, Rogers, Columbiana, Homeworth and Lisbon.

Ohio Father And Son 'Drilling' Together

WARREN, Ohio (AP)—It's like father, like son for Dr. Arno I. Wargelin and his son, Dr. David W. Wargelin, who share a dental office in civilian practice.

Both have been active as naval dental officers as well, and both began Navy service as seamen recruits. The father, now 57 and having posted 37 years of service in the U.S. Navy and Naval Reserve, retired recently with the rank of commander.

And who took over as dental officer at the Naval Reserve Training Center here? The younger Dr. Wargelin, who has 10 years service and holds the rank of lieutenant.

Whitacre was arrested at 3:15 a. m. with 17 five-gallons cans and two two-gallon cans of gasoline in his car after Ptl. Richard Koffel noticed the gate ajar and investigated.

Whitacre formerly drove a truck for the company and knew where the key was placed to open lock on the gate, authorities said.

New Carrier

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

To Let Pact On Conventional Type

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the news from Washington:

—:—

CARRIER: The Navy expects to award the contract for the new conventional carrier approved by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara not later than next May.

A spokesman gave this word today when asked about invitation for bids for carrier No. CVA 67. He added that a decision was made some months ago to build the attack carrier in a private yard.

Congress provided funds for building the carrier a year ago. The Navy subsequently asked McNamara to approve an atomic-powered carrier. A week ago he issued orders to go ahead with a standard-powered carrier.

STATUS OF WOMEN: President Kennedy has set up two groups in and out of government to improve the lot of the nation's women.

By executive orders Friday, the President created a citizens advisory council on the status of women and a special interdepartmental committee to coordinate governmental efforts in the field.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz will head the government group.

MOHOLE: Sen. John O. Pastore, chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, has suggested that Russia and other nations be invited to take part in Project Mohole.

The Rhode Island Democrat expressed the idea during a Senate Appropriations subcommittee's hearing Friday on a request for funds for the project. Mohole estimated to cost $68 million, calls for drilling holes deep in the ocean bottom to penetrate the earth's mantle and study its core.

Pastore said that since the project's fruits are to be shared by all, other nations might well share in its execution and costs.

HOME BUILDING: Sales of new one-family houses in August were 59,000—6 per cent lower than in July but 16 per cent above a year earlier.

Statistics released by the Census Bureau and the Housing and Home Finance Agency Friday put the medium price of houses sold in August at $18,200.

The number of new homes available for sale at the end of August was 263,000, an increase of about 6 per cent above the previous month.

The census bureau also estimated that for October new private construction amounted to $4.2 billion—2 per cent less than in September.

Atty. Elliott's Speaker

95 At County Rally Of Salineville GOP

SALINEVILLE — Winding up pre - election activities, the Salineville Republican Club held a countywide rally Friday night at the school cafeteria with 95 attending.

Atty. Kenneth Leishman, member of the Ohio Public Utilities Commission, was chairman of the program, which opened with prayer and pledge of allegiance. Fourteen musicians of the Southern Local Band played selections and refreshments were served.

County and state officials attended, including Robert Bell, 18th District committeeman, and secretary, Ford McQuilkin, both of Steubenville; Rep. Clarence Wetzel, County Commissioner Walter Hunston, Recorder Richard Brian, Atty. Charles Pike county GOP chairman, and others.

Wetzel, Bell, Bryan and Pike spoke briefly, and Atty. Donald Elliott of Rogers was principal speaker, discussing "Conservatism In Government."

He pointed out the effect of taxation on working people, commented about the tuberculosis problem in the state and county, and urged support of State Issue No. 1 in Tuesday's balloting.

He said the issue, a 250 million bond issue to be paid from the cigarette tax, will benefit two Columbiana County projects — the Highlandtown park and lake, and development of the Beaver Creek State Park. He is chairman of the Columbiana County Forest and Parks Council and a member of the County Board of Health.

Wetzel also referred to the state bond issue and its benefits if approved. Hunston explained the three county levies on Tuesday's ballot, for tuberculosis control and for child welfare services.

Leishman introduced local candidates, Howard Wolfe, for mayor; Harry Randolph, for Washington Township trustee, and Eugene Webster and Don Hirst, incumbent trustees, and Howard Goddard, incumbent on the Board of Public Affairs.

William Hill spoke on behalf of Mrs. Effie Potts, active in GOP affairs who was unable to be present.

Mrs. Sarah Ahlborn, secretary, reported membership has reached 135.

There were representatives present from clubs in East Palestine, Seubenville, East Liverpool, Rogers, Columbiana, Homeworth and Lisbon.

Ohio Father And Son 'Drilling' Together

WARREN, Ohio (AP)—It's like father, like son for Dr. Arno I. Wargelin and his son, Dr. David W. Wargelin, who share a dental office in civilian practice.

Both have been active as naval dental officers as well, and both began Navy service as seamen recruits. The father, now 57 and having posted 37 years of service in the U.S. Navy and Naval Reserve, retired recently with the rank of commander.

And who took over as dental officer at the Naval Reserve Training Center here? The younger Dr. Wargelin, who has 10 years service and holds the rank of lieutenant.

Hearing Scheduled In Bid To Cut Bond

CLEVELAND (AP) — A hearing is scheduled in Common Pleas Court Monday afternoon, when attorneys for John Vanatta, charged with first degree murder in the Richard S. Richards slaying, will try to have Vanatta's $100,000 bond reduced.

In a motion filed Friday, lawyers Jack G. Day and Bernard A. Berkman said they will ask that reasonable cause be shown why Vanatta is being held. They have subpoenaed Sheriff James J. McGettrick and three of his deputies.

Vanatta has been in jail since last Saturday. Richards, a 37-year-old jeweler, was slain Oct. 5. His body was found two days later in his leased automobile parked at a bus turn-around.

Mt. McKinley in Alaska, which is 20,320-feet high, ranks 20th among the world's highest mountain peaks.

Testimony Given, About Scar, Keys In Murder Trial

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—A scar and some keys figured in Friday's testimony at the murder trial of Robert K. Domer in Stark County Common Pleas Court.

During cross - examination of Richard Kauffman, assistant prosecutor of Wayne County, defense lawyer Harry W. Schmuck brought out that a scar, apparently from a healed heart attack, was found in the heart of a man whose body was discovered in Domer's burning automobile along the Stark-Wayne County line west of Massillon April 23.

It was the first evidence that Howard F. Riddle, whose charred body was found in Domer's car, had a history of heart ailments.

Domer, 44, a former Canton mortgage investment broker charged with two counts of first degree murder in the death of Riddle, a 54-year-old Akron fruit peddler.

The defense claims Riddle died before the start of the car fire, possibly from a heart attack. The prosecution contends Riddle burned to death in the car and was killed in a manner to make it appear that Domer had committed suicide so his beneficiaries could collect an estimated $288,000 in insurance.

Kauffman testified that he learned of the scar while witnessing an autopsy being performed on Riddle's body by Dr. Lester Adelson, assistant Cuyahoga County coroner, in Cleveland the afternoon of April 23. Dr. Adelson is to testify later.

VOTE FOR EAST LIVERPOOL INCOME TAX

VOTE "NO"

AT THE POLLS NOVEMBER 5th

The ballot is on an ordinance to REPEAL the Income Tax, so a "NO" Vote is for keeping the tax to continue to provide Services and Needed Major Improvements!!

HERE ARE THE FACTS!

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE WITH YOUR INCOME TAX SO FAR?

City income tax funds provided $2,500 for purchase of a new police cruiser early in 1963.

Income tax funds have been used on many occasions to supplement the normal revenue of the street department, allowing increased services and avoiding overdrafts.

Police Lt. William E. McDaniel attended a special Cleveland college course on investigative techniques, thanks to a $500 expense fund provided by the city income tax.

With a $1,000 appropriation provided from income tax receipts, East Liverpool firemen were provided with new "bunker gear"—protective coats, hats and boots used in battling blazes.

Using a $7,000 appropriation from income tax funds, the city paid more than 50 per cent of the cost of a low cost surfacing project on nearly 35 streets during 1963. The tax also provided $1,500 for oiling of dusty streets and $5,000 for a protective seal coat for streets previously blacktopped.

Insurance protection against accidental injuries was provided all patrons at the Thompson Park municipal swimming pool this season, thanks to a $1,000 appropriation from income tax revenues.

East Liverpool became part of a Columbiana County Regional Planning Organization in May, paying its $230 per capita "dues" from income tax revenues.

Hospitalization, surgical and life insurance was provided for the city's 150 appointive employes, thanks to an $8,849 appropriation provided out of tax funds.

This year's improvements at the Thompson Park baseball field, notably a new fence and backstop, were financed out of a $2,200 allocation of city income tax funds.

City income tax funds provided the $7,500 Council appropriated in February to finance the initial expense in preparing a "master plan" to guide the community's future growth and development.

Income tax revenues, allocated in an $18,000 appropriation by Council, paid for preparation of plans for improvement of St. Clair Ave. between Princeton Ave. and the city limits.

A general pay increase for appointive city employes that took effect last winter is financed out of receipts from the municipal income tax.

New snow-removal equipment that helps maintain traffic and clear parking spaces was financed principally from city income tax receipts.

Thompson Park's broadened program and improved facilities have been made possible with money collected via the city income tax.

The salaries of adult school crossing guards is another governmental expense the city could not assume without a treasury bolstered by income tax receipts.

A mechanical street sweeper that cleans paved thoroughfares on a regular schedule was purchased in 1962, thanks to city income tax revenues.

Police officers furnished their own pistols in the days before the city income tax. Now each officer is furnished with a standard city-owned sidearm, ammunition, master-keyed hand-cuffs and mace.

The city's street department has a new front-end loader with backhoe attachment that can be used for snow-removal, ditching and many such similar tasks. Its purchase was made possible by income tax revenue.

There are now about 54 Ohio Villages and Cities who have adopted a Municipal Income Tax as the best, most efficient method of financing major improvements.

A — With an Income Tax capital improvements are paid for on a current or pay as you go basis.

B — The Income Tax spreads the tax load more equally among those who benefit from it.

C — The income tax rate of eight-tenths of one per cent means a wage-earner with a $5,000 annual income pays $40, but a business or industry with net profit of $100,000 contributes $8.000.

D — Non-residents of East Liverpool who hold jobs here or operate a business or industry have contributed heavily to the city government's operating expenses since the income tax first was enacted in 1958. If it's repealed, their contributions will cease.

Potters Put 7th Win In Books, Romp Over Salem, 48-6

Prepare To Close Card At Alliance

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

Scoring almost at will, the East Liverpool Potters stormed past a slow - moving Salem eleven, 48-6, to register their seventh victory in nine games before only 3,500 fans, smallest crowd of the season, Friday night at Patterson Field.

Penalties were the only obstacles in the way of the Potters as Coach Bob Hedmond's team brought down the curtain on the 1963 home season, but will start Monday preparing to tackle Alliance next Friday. The Aviators blanked Akron St. Vincent, 34-0 last night.

THE POTTERS scored in every quarter, producing seven touchdowns, a safety and two conversions. Earl Olmstead, Potter senior halfback, tallied twice, while junior quarterback Bob Maltarich scored one touchdown and passed for two others.

Leading by a 34-6 margin at the end of three periods, Hedmond began to clean the bench and gave the Potter fans a glimpse of what can be expected next season as juniors and sophomores played out the entire fourth period and drove for two touchdowns.

THE 48-6 defeat was the worst suffered by the Quakers since 1956 when the Potters came out on top 55-7. The win also made it two straight for ELHS over Salem which shows a 3-6 period.

East Liverpool wasted little time getting to the end zone last night. Taking the opening kickoff the Potters started on their own 37 and drove to the 19, from where halfback Earl Olmstead roared around the right side for the first TD with 6:49 remaining in the initial period.

A great fake by fullback Bob Bowyer on the play helped to shake Olmstead loose. Bowyer added the conversion for the 8-0 lead.

The Potters ran the score up to 20-0, hitting pay dirt in the first minute of the second quarter when John DiPasquale, taking a neat pitchout from quarterback Bob Forzano who executed the option perfectly, went in from 12 yards out.

THE POTTERS scored again four minutes later with Forzano sweeping around the right side after reversing his field for 23 yards and the TD. Dave Oliver attempted a placement for the extra point but failed.

East Liverpool gave up the only touchdown to Salem when George Begalla, the Quakers' 200-pound fullback, who is a lot of football player, cracked over from the three with 2:04 left in the first half.

SALEM'S offense was Begalla. On a drive starting from the Salem 40, Begalla carried 10 times and picked up 54 of the 60 yards.

Penalties halted the Potters early in the second half and Oliver punted from the Salem 48. The ball was heading for the end zone when Forzano alertly downed it on the Quaker one.

This led to a safety three plays later when quarterback George Earley went back to pass, faded into the end zone and was knocked down by a rush from linemen Bruce Burbick, Ron Echols and Dave Oliver. The two - pointer came with six minutes to go in the third quarter.

SALEM KICKED off and four plays later the Potters scored again, with Olmstead carrying over from seven yards out. The Potters drove from the Salem 41 on a 13-yard pass from Forzano to Dipasquale, a 13-yard pickup by Forzano and two seven - yard bursts by Olmstead.

With East Liverpool in front 34-6, Salem came back to threaten for the only other time in the game late in the third period.

The big play was a 46-yard pass from Earley to end Art Spack, which carried to the East Liverpool 10.

With 2:36 left in the quarter, Begalla tried a hole over the left side but was stopped cold and had to be taken from the game with a leg injury.

THE HARD - HITTING fullback, who went both ways for the Quakers, didn't return to the game and Salem had little offense to offer after his departure.

East Liverpool held the Quakers and drove 95 yards for another TD.

The bench scored this one as Maltarich rolled out for 32 yards, then got nine more to the Salem 26. Maltarich hit sophomore Mike Goodballet with a pass good for 25 yards to the one, then the junior quarterback went over for the TD.

THE POTTERS came up with their final tally with only 30 seconds left in the game when Maltarich hit Baker with a five-yard touchdown pass. Goodballet ran the conversion to cap the scoring.

The final TD was set up after Bob Welsh intercepted a Salem pass and returned it to the Quaker 36. Maltarich and Goodballet teamed up for two consecutive passes good for 11 and 21 yards to the five.

—:—

THE POTTERS rolled up 405 yards in total offense with 274 on the ground and 131 in the air.

Hedmond alternated quarterbacks, with Forzano doing most of the running and completing three of four passes.

Bowyer, the standout in last week's upset of Weirton, was slowed by a knee injury and wasn't used as much last night.

Thornton's Late TD Run Gives Wellsville 28-22 Victory

Tigers Gain 2nd Over Springfield

Wellsville High quarterback Chris Thornton didn't start Friday night's game with Springfield, but he finished it with a long touchdown run to clinch a 28-22 victory for the Tigers.

Thornton, 180-pound freshman, sprinted 40 yards on an option play with 1:53 left in a free-scoring battle to break a 22-22 tie and provide Wellsville with the triumph.

LEADING Wellsville to two first period touchdowns was Harry Thornton, 150-pound sophomore, who drew his first starting assignment at quarterback and turned in a spectacular job.

The victory kept Coach Ken Woods' Tigers in contention for the runner-up spot in Buckeye Border Conference play, tied with Beaver Local with 2-1 records. The Tigers and Beaver Local will meet in a showdown battle for second place next Saturday night at Patterson Field.

TORONTO wrapped up the league championship with a victory over Beaver Local last night for a perfect 4-0 record, with second place still to be determined.

The season's smallest crowd (878 paid fans) at Nicholson Stadium saw Wellsville hike its record to 2-7 overall, with the victories coming in succession.

Wellsville tallied twice in the opening quarter, with Harry Thornton at quarterback and regular Chris Thornton sitting out at the start.

A PASS PLAY covering 11 yards from Harry Thornton to end Pat Welch, and Thornton's pass to Doug Thomas for the conversion gave Wellsville an 8-0 lead to work on early in the game.

Springfield marched back after the ensuing kickoff and Pesta fired a screen pass to halfback Gary Danko, who sped 22 yards for a touchdown. The Flying Tigers missed the conversion.

Wellsville retaliated on fullback Dale Mobley's 16 yard run with three seconds left in the first period.

SPRINGFIELD marched 54 yards for a second quarter touchdown with a 15 yard personal foul penalty against Wellsville aiding the push. Danko tallied on a three yard buck with 8:14 left in the quarter, and the Springfield halfback ran over the extra point around right end for a 14-14 deadlock.

The Tigers moved ahead, 22-14, on Mobley's 43 yard touchdown run through tackle with 5:35 left before halftime. Chris Thornton, who entered the battle in the second quarter, fired a pass to end Tom Williams for the conversion.

Raiders Gain 3rd Decision

Stanton Local Blanks JU; Pilutti Tallies Two TD's

Turning in one of their top defensive efforts, Stanton Local's Red Raiders blanked rival Jefferson Union, 16-0, Friday night at Jefferson Union.

Halfback Jim Pilutti, 170-pounder, scored both touchdowns for Coach Don McBride's Raiders who followed up last week's big upset of Brilliant with another victory.

Pilutti went 26 yards in the opening period and four yards in the second for Stanton touchdowns.

Quarterback Wes Burgett fired a pass to end Willard Smolinsky for one two-point conversion and Pilutti ran over the other.

Stanton also threatened to score in the third quarter, recovering a JU fumble at the 20 and moving to the Yellow Jackets' 15 before running out of steam.

Stanton's defensive line led by big Larry Spires, stopped JU without a serious scoring threat. The deepest penetration by JU was to the Stanton 30 in the fading seconds of the first half.

McBride's Red Raiders, who opened the season by dropping four straight, now own a 3-4-1 record. Stanton showed a 12-6 edge in first downs and gained 159 yards rushing. JU was held to only 65 yards rushing and 61 yards through the air on five of eight passes. Stanton completed one of four passes.

Top-Ranked Texas Guns For Seventh Against SMU

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Good football weather for a change has been forecast for most of the big games on college gridirons today. That means the fair, but nippy temperatures usually associated with the fall sport instead of the shirt-sleeved weather that prevailed most of October.

About the only warm spot promises to be the Cotton Bowl in Dallas where unbeaten and untied Texas, top-ranked in The Associated Press national poll, tries for its seventh straight victory against Southern Methodist. The forecast was for 70-degree temperatures.

In Chicago, where President Kennedy is expected to watch the Army-Air Force struggle at Soldier Field, the temperatures will be in the 40's. This also goes for the Navy-Notre Dame clash in South Bend, Ind., and the Purdue-Illinois clash at Champaign, Ill.

Cloudy conditions with the possibility of snow flurries are expected for the Wisconsin-Michigan State game at East Lansing, Mich., and the Syracuse-Pitt setto at Pittsburgh. Showers are given a 50-50 chance at Seattle where South-clash in the top game on the Pacific Coast.

Fair and cold are listed for many of the other top games such as Iowa at Ohio State, Colorado at Oklahoma, Mississippi at Louisiana State, and Florida at Auburn and Mississippi State at Alabama.

A Friday night rain indicated a possibly muddy field for the Brown at Princeton Ivy League encounter. The Nassau Tigers, along with Texas and Auburn, are among the few major elevens still with perfect records. All are expected to extend their streaks.

No. 1 ranked Texas is favored over SMU as are No. 2 Illinois over Purdue, No. 3 Mississippi over LSU and No. 4 Navy over Notre Dame. No. 5 Auburn is expected to down Florida.

Dartmouth at Yale, Duke at Georgia Tech, Nebraska at Missouri, Stanford at Oregon State, California at UCLA and Utah at Arizona State are some of the other important games not involving the Top Ten teams.

Polce was graduated from Rochester High School and Bowling Green State University. He received a master's degree from the University of Pittsburgh in 1956.

Potters Put 7th Win In Books, Romp Over Salem, 48-6

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

Scoring almost at will, the East Liverpool Potters stormed past a slow - moving Salem eleven, 48-6, to register their seventh victory in nine games before only 3,500 fans, smallest crowd of the season, Friday night at Patterson Field.

Penalties were the only obstacles in the way of the Potters as Coach Bob Hedmond's team brought down the curtain on the 1963 home season, but will start Monday preparing to tackle Alliance next Friday. The Aviators blanked Akron St. Vincent, 34-0 last night.

THE POTTERS scored in every quarter, producing seven touchdowns, a safety and two conversions. Earl Olmstead, Potter senior halfback, tallied twice, while junior quarterback Bob Maltarich scored one touchdown and passed for two others.

Leading by a 34-6 margin at the end of three periods, Hedmond began to clean the bench and gave the Potter fans a glimpse of what can be expected next season as juniors and sophomores played out the entire fourth period and drove for two touchdowns.

THE 48-6 defeat was the worst suffered by the Quakers since 1956 when the Potters came out on top 55-7. The win also made it two straight for ELHS over Salem which shows a 3-6 period.

East Liverpool wasted little time getting to the end zone last night. Taking the opening kickoff the Potters started on their own 37 and drove to the 19, from where halfback Earl Olmstead roared around the right side for the first TD with 6:49 remaining in the initial period.

A great fake by fullback Bob Bowyer on the play helped to shake Olmstead loose. Bowyer added the conversion for the 8-0 lead.

The Potters ran the score up to 20-0, hitting pay dirt in the first minute of the second quarter when John DiPasquale, taking a neat pitchout from quarterback Bob Forzano who executed the option perfectly, went in from 12 yards out.

THE POTTERS scored again four minutes later with Forzano sweeping around the right side after reversing his field for 23 yards and the TD. Dave Oliver attempted a placement for the extra point but failed.

East Liverpool gave up the only touchdown to Salem when George Begalla, the Quakers' 200-pound fullback, who is a lot of football player, cracked over from the three with 2:04 left in the first half.

SALEM'S offense was Begalla. On a drive starting from the Salem 40, Begalla carried 10 times and picked up 54 of the 60 yards.

Penalties halted the Potters early in the second half and Oliver punted from the Salem 48. The ball was heading for the end zone when Forzano alertly downed it on the Quaker one.

This led to a safety three plays later when quarterback George Earley went back to pass, faded into the end zone and was knocked down by a rush from linemen Bruce Burbick, Ron Echols and Dave Oliver. The two - pointer came with six minutes to go in the third quarter.

SALEM KICKED off and four plays later the Potters scored again, with Olmstead carrying over from seven yards out. The Potters drove from the Salem 41 on a 13-yard pass from Forzano to Dipasquale, a 13-yard pickup by Forzano and two seven - yard bursts by Olmstead.

With East Liverpool in front 34-6, Salem came back to threaten for the only other time in the game late in the third period.

The big play was a 46-yard pass from Earley to end Art Spack, which carried to the East Liverpool 10.

With 2:36 left in the quarter, Begalla tried a hole over the left side but was stopped cold and had to be taken from the game with a leg injury.

THE HARD - HITTING fullback, who went both ways for the Quakers, didn't return to the game and Salem had little offense to offer after his departure.

East Liverpool held the Quakers and drove 95 yards for another TD.

The bench scored this one as Maltarich rolled out for 32 yards, then got nine more to the Salem 26. Maltarich hit sophomore Mike Goodballet with a pass good for 25 yards to the one, then the junior quarterback went over for the TD.

THE POTTERS came up with their final tally with only 30 seconds left in the game when Maltarich hit Baker with a five-yard touchdown pass. Goodballet ran the conversion to cap the scoring.

The final TD was set up after Bob Welsh intercepted a Salem pass and returned it to the Quaker 36. Maltarich and Goodballet teamed up for two consecutive passes good for 11 and 21 yards to the five.

THE POTTERS rolled up 405 yards in total offense with 274 on the ground and 131 in the air.

Hedmond alternated quarterbacks, with Forzano doing most of the running and completing three of four passes.

Bowyer, the standout in last week's upset of Weirton, was slowed by a knee injury and wasn't used as much last night.

Tigers Gain 2nd Over Springfield

Wellsville High quarterback Chris Thornton didn't start Friday night's game with Springfield, but he finished it with a long touchdown run to clinch a 28-22 victory for the Tigers.

Thornton, 180-pound freshman, sprinted 40 yards on an option play with 1:53 left in a free-scoring battle to break a 22-22 tie and provide Wellsville with the triumph.

LEADING Wellsville to two first period touchdowns was Harry Thornton, 150-pound sophomore, who drew his first starting assignment at quarterback and turned in a spectacular job.

The victory kept Coach Ken Woods' Tigers in contention for the runner-up spot in Buckeye Border Conference play, tied with Beaver Local with 2-1 records. The Tigers and Beaver Local will meet in a showdown battle for second place next Saturday night at Patterson Field.

TORONTO wrapped up the league championship with a victory over Beaver Local last night for a perfect 4-0 record, with second place still to be determined.

The season's smallest crowd (878 paid fans) at Nicholson Stadium saw Wellsville hike its record to 2-7 overall, with the victories coming in succession.

Wellsville tallied twice in the opening quarter, with Harry Thornton at quarterback and regular Chris Thornton sitting out at the start.

A PASS PLAY covering 11 yards from Harry Thornton to end Pat Welch, and Thornton's pass to Doug Thomas for the conversion gave Wellsville an 8-0 lead to work on early in the game.

Springfield marched back after the ensuing kickoff and Pesta fired a screen pass to halfback Gary Danko, who sped 22 yards for a touchdown. The Flying Tigers missed the conversion.

Wellsville retaliated on fullback Dale Mobley's 16 yard run with three seconds left in the first period.

SPRINGFIELD marched 54 yards for a second quarter touchdown with a 15 yard personal foul penalty against Wellsville aiding the push. Danko tallied on a three yard buck with 8:14 left in the quarter, and the Springfield halfback ran over the extra point around right end for a 14-14 deadlock.

The Tigers moved ahead, 22-14, on Mobley's 43 yard touchdown run through tackle with 5:35 left before halftime. Chris Thornton, who entered the battle in the second quarter, fired a pass to end Tom Williams for the conversion.

Late in the final quarter, Wellsville took over at midfield and moved to the Springfield 42 for a fourth and two situation and Mobley charged to the 40 for a first down on an important play. Raiders Gain 3rd Decision

Stanton Local Blanks JU; Pilutti Tallies Two TD's

Turning in one of their top defensive efforts, Stanton Local's Red Raiders blanked rival Jefferson Union, 16-0, Friday night at Jefferson Union.

Halfback Jim Pilutti, 170-pounder, scored both touchdowns for Coach Don McBride's Raiders who followed up last week's big upset of Brilliant with another victory.

Pilutti went 26 yards in the opening period and four yards in the second for Stanton touchdowns.

Quarterback Wes Burgett fired a pass to end Willard Smolinsky for one two-point conversion and Pilutti ran over the other.

Stanton also threatened to score in the third quarter, recovering a JU fumble at the 20 and moving to the Yellow Jackets' 15 before running out of steam.

Stanton's defensive line led by big Larry Spires, stopped JU without a serious scoring threat. The deepest penetration by JU was to the Stanton 30 in the fading seconds of the first half.

McBride's Red Raiders, who opened the season by dropping four straight, now own a 3-4-1 record. Stanton showed a 12-6 edge in first downs and gained 159 yards rushing. JU was held to only 65 yards rushing and 61 yards through the air on five of eight passes. Stanton completed one of four passes.

Top-Ranked Texas Guns For Seventh Against SMU

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Good football weather for a change has been forecast for most of the big games on college gridirons today. That means the fair, but nippy temperatures usually associated with the fall sport instead of the shirt-sleeved weather that prevailed most of October.

About the only warm spot promises to be the Cotton Bowl in Dallas where unbeaten and untied Texas, top-ranked in The Associated Press national poll, tries for its seventh straight victory against Southern Methodist. The forecast was for 70-degree temperatures.

In Chicago, where President Kennedy is expected to watch the Army-Air Force struggle at Soldier Field, the temperatures will be in the 40's. This also goes for the Navy-Notre Dame clash in South Bend, Ind., and the Purdue-Illinois clash at Champaign, Ill.

Cloudy conditions with the possibility of snow flurries are expected for the Wisconsin-Michigan State game at East Lansing, Mich., and the Syracuse-Pitt setto at Pittsburgh. Showers are given a 50-50 chance at Seattle where South-clash in the top game on the Pacific Coast.

Fair and cold are listed for many of the other top games such as Iowa at Ohio State, Colorado at Oklahoma, Mississippi at Louisiana State, and Florida at Auburn and Mississippi State at Alabama.

A Friday night rain indicated a possibly muddy field for the Brown at Princeton Ivy League encounter. The Nassau Tigers, along with Texas and Auburn, are among the few major elevens still with perfect records. All are expected to extend their streaks.

No. 1 ranked Texas is favored over SMU as are No. 2 Illinois over Purdue, No.3 Mississippi over LSU and No. 4 Navy over Notre Dame, No. 5 Auburn is expected to down Florida.

Dartmouth at Yale, Duke at Georgia Tech, Nebraska at Missouri, Stanford at Oregon State, California at UCLA and Utah at Arizona State are some of the other important games not involving the Top Ten teams.

Oak Glen Posts Upset By Clipping Moundsville, 15-6

Beavers Lose Free-Scoring Game To Toronto, 47-36

Oyster Boots Field Goal; Pettit, Mayhew Tally Touchdowns

Underdog Oak Glen High sandwiched a field goal between first and final quarter touchdowns to upset Class AAA Moundsville, 15-6, Friday night at Newell's Memorial Field.

Coach Robert Starkey's fast-improving Golden Bears bagged their third triumph of the season in a game that got off to a spectacular start.

MOUNDSVILLE received the opening kickoff and shot into a 6-0 lead on the second play from scrimmage when Radar scooted 68 yards up the middle with only a little over a minute of playing time elapsed. A kick for the conversion failed.

Fighting back, Oak Glen marched 58 yards in quick fashion after receiving the ensuing kickoff.

QUARTERBACK Mike Clutter whipped a 31-yard pass to Gary Mayhew in Oak Glen's march to paydirt, and fullback Allen Pettit tallied on a plunge of less than a yard. An attempted kick for the conversion was blocked.

In the third quarter, Oak Glen took over on its own 20 and the brilliant Pettit broke loose for a 70-yard run to the Moundsville seven-yard line to place the Golden Bears in scoring position.

AFTER THREE plays failed to produce a touchdown, Oak Glen called on lineman Jim Oyster for a field goal attempt. Oyster kicked from the 15 yard line, and the ball traveled the 25 yards through the goal posts for a perfect boot with eight seconds left in the third period. It was one of the first successful field goals in the area in recent years.

In command of a 9-6 lead, Oak Glen went on to turn a Moundsville fumble into another touchdown in the final quarter.

The Golden Bears punted, and Moundsville fumbled, with Pettit recovering at the four-yard line. Mayhew burst through for the score with 5:17 left in the game. The placement attempt struck the crossbar and was unsuccessful.

MOUNDSVILLE, a loser to high-powered Weirton by only 26-12, was a big favorite to spill the Gloden Bears. Moundsville has won two games.

Oak Glen piled up 11 first downs to seven by Moundsville. The Golden Bears completed four of seven passes for 66 yards and gained 179 in rushing. Moundsville hit on only one of six passes for 16 yards and picked up 186 yards rushing.

Oak Glen was penalized four times for 50 yards, while Moundsville lost 25 yards on three penalties.

Red Knights Win Conference Title

In one of the wildest scoring games of the season, Beaver Local and Toronto High scored touchdowns at a dizzy pace to roll up a total of 83 points, with Toronto winning, 47-36, Friday night.

Toronto, clinching its first Buckeye Border Conference crown, concluded its home season with an outburst of seven touchdowns — five scored by halfback Bill Hutchinson, 175-pound senior.

Coach Ed Stevens' fighting Beavers tallied five times, with Jim McLaughlin and Norm Gaydos each getting a pair.

Toronto swept to its sixth victory of the season overall, and fourth in conference play to win the title with a 4-0 record, succeeding Wellsville as champion.

The defeat dropped Beaver Local into a tie with Wellsville for second place in the conference, and an overall 3-6 record.

It was strictly an offensive show by the two conference foes, with long, dazzling runs accounting for several Toronto tallies.

Hutchinson got five touch downs on runs of 14, 2, 80, 1 and 1 yards, andtacked on a conversion on a pass from Logan to account for 32 of Toronto's points. His 80 yard run was the return of a kickoff.

Each team also fared well in their air attacks, with Beaver Local completing seven of 17 passes for 114 yards, and Toronto seven of 13 for 134 yards.

Beaver Local piled up 238 yards rushing on 56 attempts from scrimmage, and Toronto gained 170 yards in 28 carries. Penalties were about even, with the Beavers losing 60 yards and Toronto 55. Beaver led in first downs, 20-14.

Beaver Local drops the curtain on its season next Saturday night at Patterson Field against arch-rival Wellsville. Toronto takes its 6-3 record to Weirton Madonna Friday.

Fans Wonder If Browns Can Bounce Back

By The Associated Press

Can the Cleveland Browns bounce back?

That was the question in the minds of many followers of professional football today as the Browns made ready to play Philadelphia in Franklin Field in one of Sunday's seven National Football League games.

The Browns and their all-around star, Jimmy Brown, absorbed a 33-6 whipping from the New York Giants last week after six straight victories. How they will play against the Eagles in Philadelphia may provide an indication whether they will stay in first place in the Eastern Conference.

The Giants and the Cardinals, now tied for second in the East at 5-2, battle at St. Louis. The loser could well drop out of contention.

The Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers, tied for the top in the Western Conference, face stiff opposition. The Bears are at Baltimore while the Packers take on Pittsburgh in Milwaukee.

Detroit is at San Francisco, Washington at Dallas and Los Angeles at Minnesota in Sunday's other NFL games.

The weekend pro activities got under way Friday night with Boston battering Houston 45-3 in an American League game at Boston. The Patriots thus tied the Oilers for the lead in the Eastern Division at 5-4-0.

Maine leads the world in the production of the familiar flat tins of sardines.

Rivero Pounds Out Decision In Slam-Bang Bout

NEW YORK (AP)—"My guy will fight Dick Tiger or six bulls next," said Rocky Graziano. "Right, Rocky?

Argentina's Juan Rivero, whose right eye had been closed in a victorious, primitive, 10-round punch-fest with Cuban Florentino Fernandez Friday night, nodded his head as if he understood.

"Sure, sure," he said to his co-manager and second. Then he turned to a friend and asked in Spanish: "What did he say?" When advised, his good eye sparkled and he replied:

"Tiger yes, the bulls no."

Oyster Boots Field Goal; Pettit, Mayhew Tally Touchdowns

Underdog Oak Glen High sandwiched a field goal between first and final quarter touchdowns to upset Class AAA Moundsville, 15-6, Friday night at Newell's Memorial Field.

Coach Robert Starkey's fast-improving Golden Bears bagged their third triumph of the season in a game that got off to a spectacular start.

MOUNDSVILLE received the opening kickoff and shot into a 6-0 lead on the second play from scrimmage when Radar scooted 68 yards up the middle with only a little over a minute of playing time elapsed. A kick for the conversion failed.

Fighting back, Oak Glen marched 58 yards in quick fashion after receiving the ensuing kickoff.

QUARTERBACK Mike Clutter whipped a 31-yard pass to Gary Mayhew in Oak Glen's march to paydirt, and fullback Allen Pettit tallied on a plunge of less than a yard. An attempted kick for the conversion was blocked.

In the third quarter, Oak Glen took over on its own 20 and the brilliant Pettit broke loose for a 70-yard run to the Moundsville seven-yard line to place the Golden Bears in scoring position.

AFTER THREE plays failed to produce a touchdown, Oak Glen called on lineman Jim Oyster for a field goal attempt. Oyster kicked from the 15 yard line, and the ball traveled the 25 yards through the goal posts for a perfect boot with eight seconds left in the third period. It was one of the first successful field goals in the area in recent years.

In command of a 9-6 lead, Oak Glen went on to turn a Moundsville fumble into another touchdown in the final quarter.

The Golden Bears punted, and Moundsville fumbled, with Pettit recovering at the four-yard line. Mayhew burst through for the score with 5:17 left in the game. The placement attempt struck the crossbar and was unsuccessful.

MOUNDSVILLE, a loser to high-powered Weirton by only 26-12, was a big favorite to spill the Gloden Bears. Moundsville has won two games.

Oak Glen piled up 11 first downs to seven by Moundsville. The Golden Bears completed four of seven passes for 66 yards and gained 179 in rushing. Moundsville hit on only one of six passes for 16 yards and picked up 186 yards rushing.

Oak Glen was penalized four times for 50 yards, while Moundsville lost 25 yards on three penalties.

Rivero Pounds Out Decision In Slam-Bang Bout

NEW YORK (AP)—"My guy will fight Dick Tiger or six bulls next," said Rocky Graziano. "Right, Rocky?

Argentina's Juan Rivero, whose right eye had been closed in a victorious, primitive, 10-round punch-fest with Cuban Florentino Fernandez Friday night, nodded his head as if he understood.

"Sure, sure," he said to his co-manager and second. Then he turned to a friend and asked in Spanish: "What did he say?" When advised, his good eye sparkled and he replied:

"Tiger yes, the bulls no."

Red Knights Win Conference Title

In one of the wildest scoring games of the season, Beaver Local and Toronto High scored touchdowns at a dizzy pace to roll up a total of 83 points, with Toronto winning, 47-36, Friday night.

Toronto, clinching its first Buckeye Border Conference crown, concluded its home season with an outburst of seven touchdowns — five scored by halfback Bill Hutchinson, 175-pound senior.

Coach Ed Stevens' fighting Beavers tallied five times, with Jim McLaughlin and Norm Gaydos each getting a pair.

Toronto swept to its sixth victory of the season overall, and fourth in conference play to win the title with a 4-0 record, succeeding Wellsville as champion.

The defeat dropped Beaver Local into a tie with Wellsville for second place in the conference, and an overall 3-6 record.

It was strictly an offensive show by the two conference foes, with long, dazzling runs accounting for several Toronto tallies.

Hutchinson got five touchdowns on runs of 14, 2, 80, 1 and 1 yards, andtacked on a conversion on a pass from Logan to account for 32 of Toronto's points. His 80 yard run was the return of a kickoff.

Each team also fared well in their air attacks, with Beaver Local completing seven of 17 passes for 114 yards, and Toronto seven of 13 for 134 yards.

Beaver Local piled up 238 yards rushing on 56 attempts from scrimmage, and Toronto gained 170 yards in 28 carries. Penalties were about even, with the Beavers losing 60 yards and Toronto 55. Beaver led in first downs, 20-14.

Beaver Local drops the curtain on its season next Saturday night at Patterson Field against arch-rival Wellsville. Toronto takes its 6-3 record to Weirton Madonna Friday.

Fans Wonder If Browns Can Bounce Back

By The Associated Press

Can the Cleveland Browns bounce back?

That was the question in the minds of many followers of professional football today as the Browns made ready to play Philadelphia in Franklin Field in one of Sunday's seven National Football League games.

The Browns and their all-around star, Jimmy Brown, absorbed a 33-6 whipping from the New York Giants last week after six straight victories. How they will play against the Eagles in Philadelphia may provide an indication whether they will stay in first place in the Eastern Conference.

The Giants and the Cardinals, now tied for second in the East at 5-2, battle at St. Louis. The loser could well drop out of contention.

The Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers, tied for the top in the Western Conference, face stiff opposition. The Bears are at Baltimore while the Packers take on Pittsburgh in Milwaukee.

Detroit is at San Francisco, Washington at Dallas and Los Angeles at Minnesota in Sunday's other NFL games.

The weekend pro activities got under way Friday night with Boston battering Houston 45-3 in an American League game at Boston. The Patriots thus tied the Oilers for the lead in the Eastern Division at 5-4-0.

Resources Chief Names Aide To Push Proposals

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Natural Resources Director Fred E. Morr announced today appointment of an administrative assistant to put into effect "Little Hoover Commission" recommendations for his department.

The commission said its suggestions would save $1.6 million a year.

The new assistant is Richard N. Cole, Marion telephone official who retired Thursday after 27 years in the telephone industry.

Cole became administrative assistant to the president of General Telephone Company of Ohio after that firm purchased Ohio Consolidated Telephone Co., Portsmouth, in 1957.

Cole headed the Portsmouth company for six years after serving as general manager and vice president. He was an orchestra leader and singer for several years before entering private employment.

Menjou died Oct. 29 at the age of 73.

More than 100 mourners attended the services, including James Stewart, George Murphy, William Demarest and J. Carroll Naish.

Junior Editors Quiz on FLOWERS

QUESTION: Why do some flowers give a pleasant odor?

ANSWER: Fragrance in flowers is there because it is one of the guideposts which tell insects where precious stores of pollen and nectar are hidden. In turn, the insects distribute the pollen among the flowers so they can become fertilized and seeds may form from which new flowers can grow.

Flower fragrances generally come from the colored petals (color being another guidepost for insects) though in certain cases, (mint, for example) fragrance can come from stems and leaves. The cells on the upper side of a petal generally secrete complex substances called "essential oils" which create the fragrance. Sometimes, as in the rose, the fragrance comes from both sides of the petal. In flowers without petals, other parts of the flower, like the sepal and bracts, may create fragrance. Fragrance occurs also in many fruits.

FOR YOU TO DO: See how many plant fragrances you can find now that summer is over. There will be the delightful but delicate smell of apples. Don't forget to sniff some evergreens. Get your nose close to the leaves to pick up the spicy, odor that reminds you of Christmas.

Mona Pearson of Fort Collins, Colo., wins the daily grand prize of a 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia for this question. Maily yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of The Review and you too may win a set.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Saturday, Nov. 2, the 306th day of 1963. There are 59 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1734, copies of John Peter Zenger's weekly journal were ordered seized and destroyed in New York. The action led to a historic trial to establish the principle of freedom of the press.

On this date:

In 1795, James Polk, who became 11th president, was born in Mecklenburg County, N.C.

In 1889, North and South Dakota were admitted to the Union as the 39th and 40th states.

In 1920, station KDKA at Pittsburgh, Pa., inaugurated regular radio broadcasting when it broadcast U.S. presidential election returns.

In 1948, Prsident Harry Truman was elected for his first full term in a surprise victory over Republican candidate Thomas Dewey.

Ten years ago — Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Nathan Twining disclosed the United States would eventually equip all nations of the free world with atomic arms.

Five years ago — Six major U.S. airlines united in a strike-aid pact under which one or more lines struck would receive from the others all increased revenue realized as a result of the shutdown.

One year ago — President Kennedy said the Russian missile bases in Cuba were being dismantled but that aerial surveillance of Cuba would continue pending an international inspection.

It'll Be Taken Inside In Hunting Season

SAN ANSELMO, Calif. (AP) — A cast iron deer weighing 175 pounds was given to San Anselmo by Daisy Dondero, whose family heirloom survived the 1906 San Francisco earthquake and fire.

The deer will be placed in front of the city hall and councilman William Franchino quipped, "We'll have to take it in during the hunting season."

Junior Editors Quiz on FLOWERS

QUESTION: Why do some flowers give a pleasant odor?

ANSWER: Fragrance in flowers is there because it is one of the guideposts which tell insects where precious stores of pollen and nectar are hidden. In turn, the insects distribute the pollen among the flowers so they can become fertilized and seeds may form from which new flowers can grow.

Flower fragrances generally come from the colored petals (color being another guidepost for insects) though in certain cases, (mint, for example) fragrance can come from stems and leaves. The cells on the upper side of a petal generally secrete complex substances called "essential oils" which create the fragrance. Sometimes, as in the rose, the fragrance comes from both sides of the petal. In flowers without petals, other parts of the flower, like the sepal and bracts, may create fragrance. Fragrance occurs also in many fruits.

FOR YOU TO DO: See how many plant fragrances you can find now that summer is over. There will be the delightful but delicate smell of apples. Don't forget to sniff some evergreens. Get your nose close to the leaves to pick up the spicy, odor that reminds you of Christmas.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Saturday, Nov. 2, the 306th day of 1963. There are 59 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1734, copies of John Peter Zenger's weekly journal were ordered seized and destroyed in New York. The action led to a historic trial to establish the principle of freedom of the press.

On this date:

In 1795, James Polk, who became 11th president, was born in Mecklenburg County, N.C.

In 1889, North and South Dakota were admitted to the Union as the 39th and 40th states.

In 1920, station KDKA at Pittsburgh, Pa., inaugurated regular radio broadcasting when it broadcast U.S. presidential election returns.

In 1948, Prsident Harry Truman was elected for his first full term in a surprise victory over Republican candidate Thomas Dewey.

Ten years ago — Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Nathan Twining disclosed the United States would eventually equip all nations of the free world with atomic arms.

Five years ago — Six major U.S. airlines united in a strike-aid pact under which one or more lines struck would receive from the others all increased revenue realized as a result of the shutdown.

Goldwater Says He Won't Denounce Birch Members

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater says he has no intention of denouncing members of the John Birch Society as long as what they do and say is "temperate and in keeping with the decency called for in American politics."

But the Arizona Republican doesn't put the society's founder, Robert Welch, in that category.

Goldwater said he long ago took issue with Welch—who has called former President Dwight D. Eisenhower a traitor and the late John Foster Dulles a Communist.

"The argument, in my opinion, against the Birch Society centers on Mr. Welch..." Goldwater said.

The conservative senator spelled out his views on the right-wing society in a letter to Thomas M. Storke, editor and publisher of the Santa Barbara, Calif., News-Press.

Storke won a Pulitzer Prize in 1962 for editorials "calling public attention to the efforts of the semi-secret John Birch Society to wage a campaign of hate and vilification in Santa Barbara."

The California publisher wrote Goldwater Aug. 15 asking where the senator stands on "principal tenets of the society which have been laid down by Welch himself."

In his Oct. 21 reply, made public today, Goldwater said he does not agree with the society's call for impeachment of Chief Justice Earl Warren, elimination of the income tax and U.S. withdrawal from the United Nations.

"I have followed your campaign against Mr. Welch," Goldwater wrote, "and I would like to inform you that I had openly expressed my disagreement with that gentleman quite some time before you took up the cudgels."

The senator said "if you start denouncing organizations whose leaders have made comments or adopted principles or taken actions with which you do not agree, you would be surprised at how few you could wholly accept."

He added:

"Let's not berate the constitutional rights of Americans to say anything as long as it doesn't lead to the overthrow of our government. Let's disagree with them where we do, but let's not by association intimidate anyone from saying what he thinks."

Goldwater has said the society is not a power in U.S. politics anyhow.

$26,703 Seen As Balance In Income Tax

A balance of $26,703.92 remained in city income tax funds at the close of business Thursday after receipts of $253,190.36 for the first 10 months of 1963, Auditor Lawrence C. Applegate reported.

The total appropriated out of anticipated tax receipts for 1963 was $256,309, so the revenue through the first 10 months of the year is within $3,119 of the amount expected for the full 12 months, the auditor pointed out.

The auditor's report was comprised mainly of a breakdown showing the disposition of all funds collected through the tax. It showed appropriations directly from the tax receipts for operating purposes, as well as lump sum transfers to the general fund and the street department fund.

The appropriations included $7,500 as the first installment on a "master plan" contract; $2,350 in two allocations for backstops and fences at ball fields in Thompson Park and $250 for incidental expenses of the Planning Commission.

Transfers to the general fund included: $8,849.06 to pay for hospitalization and life insurance for city employes; $130,757 to make up a deficiency in revenue from other sources; $1,985 for road improvements at Thompson Park and liability insurance at the municipal swimming pool; $230 to pay the city's "dues" in a regional planning commission, and $60,000 provided for in the year's budget.

The two items in the general fund — $130,757 and $60,000 — mean that over $190,000 of the tax receipts were used principally to pay day-to-day operating expenses such as salaries and wages in all branches of the government, including the fire and police departments, City Hall offices and others.

The report shows $23,500 of the money was appropriated directly to street improvements and maintenance.

The appropriations include: $1,500 for oiling unsurfaced streets; $5,000 for seal coating blacktop surfaces; $7,000 as the city's share of a low cost surfacing program, and $10,000 to help meet the department's payrolls.

The report also showed these funds provided for income tax office operations: Salaries: $14,688; postage, $1,400; printing of forms and supplies, $2,500; refunds, $1,000, and incidental expenses, $1,300.

County Power Uses Given Meter Option

LISBON — The Ohio Public Utilities Commission has approved an Ohio Edison Co. proposal to let residential customers in unincorporated areas of Columbiana County and 35 other counties decide for themselves whether to permit use of demand meters.

Demand meters generally measure peak loads of electricity for a given period of time.

PUCO officials said they have received a large volume of mail on the subject. They said the general impression seems to be that demand meters mean higher electric bills than conventional meters, something the company denies.

Among other counties affected are Stark, Mahoning and Carroll.

Soldier In 'Big Lift'

HAMMONDSVILLE — Spcl. 5C Thomas J. Pisarsky, 22, was among the 2nd Armored Division troops flown from bases near Ft. Hood, Tex., to Germany in "Operation Big Lift." Stationed at Ft. Hood regularly, he is a member of Co. B, 142nd Signal Battalion. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Peter P. Pisarsky of R. D. 1. He was graduated from Stanton Local High School in 1959.

Club Hears H. J. English

Lions Speaker Discusses Potentialities Of Tourism

"Tourism could be stimulated into the city's leading business, if...," H. J. English, assistant manager of the Columbiana County Motor Club, told the Lions Club Friday afternoon at the Travelers Hotel.

To complete his sentence, English said it would take enthusiasm and a change in attitude. "Collectively, our attitude seems to be one of defeat," he declared.

Arousing interest for others to visit the area doesn't require federal or state funds, he pointed out. "It's something we can do for ourselves."

"Believe it or not but people are anxious to come to East Liverpool," he continued, pointing out the tourist business has been growing.

Most of the tours have been arranged through the motor club, English said, explaining the club is anxious to comply since it provides an opportunity to hire a few more people and helps underwrite the club's expenses.

Eight groups toured the area this year, generally from a radius of 100 miles of East Liverpool. Two groups made repeat visits, he said.

The tours generally include a dinner, a tour of a district pottery, a visit to the Historical Society's Museum in the Carnegie Library and a view of the city and Ohio River from a Pleasant Heights vantage point.

One group took a boat cruise along the river as far as the Stratton Dam and another included Beaver Creek State Park in the itinerary, he pointed out. English quoted one visitor as commenting, " 'I've crossed the Ohio River thousands of times, but this is the first time I've ever seen it'."

"We've received participation beyond expectations," English continued, citing the co-operation of police, free parking and businessmen underwriting brochures citing points of interest in the southern area of the county.

The tourists also spend money, but it's impossible to determine how much, he explained. Scenic attractions are not the only lure, English continued, pointing out the boat regatta sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the East Liverpool Dahlia and Floral Society's annual fall show.

He told the club that collectively it is about as complacent to opportunities as the Kiwanis and Rotary organizations. "It will take a united effort," English concluded, urging members to co-operate.

He was introduced by William Kyle, program chairman.

John T. Smith, president, reminded members the Board of Directors will meet Monday night at 8 at the Potters Savings & Loan Co. annex. He announced a zone meeting will be held Nov. 12 in Lisbon.

Club members also are selling tickets for the Steubenville Lions Club's annual auto show Nov. 14-17 with the club receiving a share of the purchase price of each ticket.

New Soviet Space Vehicle Seen Step To Moon Station

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet scientist said today that the new space ship Polyot-1 is the forerunner of vehicles which may be used for building a moonshot launching platform in space.

The Soviet news agency Tass quoted Prof. Valdimir Dobronravov, a mechanical engineer, as saying that with the perfection of the Polyot space ships "it will be possible to create such spaceships which will solve the task of cosmonauts meeting in outer space."

Such meetings will be necessary in the future, for building big orbital space stations and for manned flights to the moon and other planets," he added.

The new Soviet spacecraft was launched Friday. It is unmanned.

Compared with the Polyot-1, the maneuverability of earlier sputniks and manned spaceships was limited, he said.

A Tass science commentator said the Polyot-1 would be used to study radiation belts at various distances from the earth.

He said the space craft could be guided to the same altitude and location several times to provide checks on information gathered.

Township Given $300 Slag Grant

LISBON — A $300 slag grant for Hanover Township was approved by county commissioners at their meeting Thursday.

The board also approved a plat of Charles Shapiro's second addition in Section 29 of St. Clair Township. The 3.2-acre tract includes .95-acre dedicated for streets.

Travel allowances were approved for:

Seven on the staff of the Retarded Children's School at Elkton to attend a meeting in Columbus.

Welfare Director Robert Bycroft to attend a meeting in Columbus yesterday and today.

Juvenile Officer James Miller to take two juveniles to the Ohio Youth Commission in Columbus Tuesday and to return a runaway girl from Lisbon to St. Clairsville.

Next meeting is Monday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Killed In Collision

DEFIANCE, Ohio (AP)—Henry F. Arnos, 83-year-old retired farmer of Rt. 1, Defiance, is dead as a result of a traffic accident. Arnos' truck collided at a rural intersection Friday with a car driven by James R. Hess, 38, of Rt. 1, Pioneer.

Ohio Woman Killed In W. Va. Pike Wreck

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—A collision between a semi-trailer and a car on the West Virginia Turnpike about 20 miles south of Charleston Friday claimed the life of an Ohio woman.

Mrs. Alice Snyder, 50, of Millersburg, Ohio, was killed when her car sideswiped the truck. Injured in the accident were Mrs. Mary Jean Fair, 26, and her 4-year-old daughter, Sharon, of Millersburg.

Emergency Hike In Milk Prices Urged In Appeal

CLEVELAND (AP)—An emergency hike in prices paid farmers for their milk deliveries has been requested by Cleveland and other Ohio dairy farmer cooperatives in a plea to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The Milk Producers Federation of Cleveland cited the high cost of production resulting from prolonged drought in asking yesterday for an emergency hearing to amend the price formula of the Northeastern Ohio Milk Marketing Order.

Charles K. Laughton, federation manager, said a hike of 35 cents a hundredweight on Class I, or fluid, milk utilization is being sought. A 45-cent increase would be the equivalent of one cent a quart at retail.

Laughton pointed out that pasturage had failed, hay crops were poor and that many farmers already were feeding their winter's supply of hay. In many areas dairy farmers have been hauling water.

The Akron and Stark County co-ops are among those that have joined in the request for an emergency hearing. Such hearings on the same subject have been held elsewhere in the midwest drought area but no decisions have been announced.

If granted, the increase probably would become effective simultaneously and over a wide area to keep milk prices competitive.

2 Ohio Senators Vote Opposite On Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ohio's two Democratic senators vote opposite ways Friday as the Senate rejected a motion to send back to its Foreign Relations Committee the $4.2 billion foreign aid authorization bill.

Sen. Stephen M. Young voted for the motion while Sen. Frank J. Lausche opposed it. The measure, proposed by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., was rejected 46-29.

An Eyewitness Report of the Birth By the Nurse Who Took Care of Them

ARE YOU CRUEL TO YOUR PET WITHOUT KNOWING IT?

An animal lover's misguided affection can harm a pet as much as any bully

By RUTHERFORD T. PHILLIPS
Executive Director, American Humane Association

MANY ANIMAL LOVERS are shocked to learn that the most common cruelty to animals is by those who love them best.

We at the American Humane Association still fight brutality, cruel animal shows, sadistic hunting and slaughtering but find the most widespread cruelty is born of misguided affection.

Here are the most common ways in which animal lovers unwittingly hurt their pets. Do you know the right answers to these questions?

■ Should you give your pet the freedom to run?

Putting the cat or dog out at night is so common most of us think it is right. The truth is, millions of animals spend winter nights huddling for warmth in frozen corners. They become nuisances to neighbors. They are hurt in fights or killed by autos. They catch diseases. They become lost.

Your pet deserves a place in your home. Fencing him in is not cruel, but turning him loose, away from your protection, is.

■ Do you give your pet what he likes to eat?

Pets do not know what is good for them. They will eat spoiled food or poisoned food. They will eat cold food (which upsets some). Dogs love chicken, but any bone that splinters can choke them. Kittens love milk and birds love crackers, but their digestive systems do not take much. Many pet owners unwittingly keep pets in a state of digestive upset.

A serious cruelty is giving your pet the quantity he wants to eat. Most will eat far too much. Obesity damages an animal's health. A nice, plump animal is usually one that faces a shortened life.

■ Do you spoil your pet?

This is a great cruelty. Animals, like children, become neurotic and unhappy without discipline. Be consistent in discipline, or you will have a nervous, confused pet headed for trouble.

To punish, don't hurt your pet. He won't understand. Most trainers feel that a sharp command or scolding tone of voice can do the job. Act quickly and consistently, and soon a word and a look will be enough.

■ Should you allow your pet to breed?

Many think it is cruel to deny breeding. As a result, we now have 25 million stray cats in America as testimony to our "kindness." We have millions of other unwanted, hungry animals because pet owners didn't want to be "cruel."

Unless you are prepared to give the young a home, we urge that you have your pet painlessly neutered just at maturity. It will live longer and be easier to control. It will not be frustrated.

■ Should you give a child a pet as a gift?

Of course, if—

If the parents agree and will take responsibility for its care.

If the child will be taught to respect the animal as a fellow, feeling creature. Many a child has hurt or killed a small animal by careless play. You must find out what the pet needs and teach this to the child.

If the animal is a suitable pet, not a holiday toy doomed to early death.

■ Should you give an unwanted pet a "sporting chance" for life?

Your circumstances may no longer allow for a pet. But it is cruel to abandon him, as so many do, thinking he will manage somehow.

He will live—for a while, hungry, exhausted, bewildered—until accident, wild animals, or exposure end his torture. If you can't find a home for him, take him to your animal shelter. Perhaps he will be adopted. If not, at least he can be spared a cruel, losing fight.

■ Should you adopt a homeless animal?

But is he homeless?

Call your animal shelter. Check around your community. An anxious owner may be waiting. If not, you may adopt the pet in good conscience.

Never, never adopt young birds or wild animals, however. Very knowing people may be able to handle them properly, but for most people to try is cruel.

■ Do you doctor your sick pets?

If so, are you a veterinarian?

Experienced owners may tell distemper from a cold, or stomach upset from feline enteritis. But most can't. It is appalling how many pets reach a veterinarian too late to be saved. It is cruel to keep a pet from medical attention.

■ Should you shower a new pet with attention?

No. A new young pet should be given time alone. Kittens and puppies are often exhausted or terrified by too much play with children or too many demands to perform. Give the pet hours without strain.

■ Should you choose a house for your pet because of its beauty?

This is one of the most common cruelties. Don't assume a commercial manufacturer knows what your particular animal needs.

Typical is the spherical fish bowl. Fish tanks need large surfaces exposed to air. A spherical bowl can suffocate fish. Many lovely cages are cruel. The smallest bird needs a cage at least two feet square to exercise.

The real answer to loving cruelty? Find out from experts what your pet really needs—in food, discipline, medicine, housing, and all the rest. Don't guess or assume. And remember, real kindness sometimes means denying things which affection makes us want to give.

ARE YOU CRUEL TO YOUR PET WITHOUT KNOWING IT?

An animal lover's misguided affection can harm a pet as much as any bully

By RUTHERFORD T. PHILLIPS

Executive Director, American Humane Association

MANY ANIMAL LOVERS are shocked to learn that the most common cruelty to animals is by those who love them best.

We at the American Humane Association still fight brutality, cruel animal shows, sadistic hunting and slaughtering but find the most widespread cruelty is born of misguided affection.

Here are the most common ways in which animal lovers unwittingly hurt their pets. Do you know the right answers to these questions?

■ Should you give your pet the freedom to run?

Putting the cat or dog out at night is so common most of us think it is right. The truth is, millions of animals spend winter nights huddling for warmth in frozen corners. They become nuisances to neighbors. They are hurt in fights or killed by autos. They catch diseases. They become lost.

Your pet deserves a place in your home. Fencing him in is not cruel, but turning him loose, away from your protection, is.

■ Do you give your pet what he likes to eat?

Pets do not know what is good for them. They will eat spoiled food or poisoned food. They will eat cold food (which upsets some). Dogs love chicken, but any bone that splinters can choke them. Kittens love milk and birds love crackers, but their digestive systems do not take much. Many pet owners unwittingly keep pets in a state of digestive upset.

A serious cruelty is giving your pet the quantity he wants to eat. Most will eat far too much. Obesity damages an animal's health. A nice, plump animal is usually one that faces a shortened life.

■ Do you spoil your pet?

This is a great cruelty. Animals, like children, become neurotic and unhappy without discipline. Be consistent in discipline, or you will have a nervous, confused pet headed for trouble.

To punish, don't hurt your pet. He won't understand. Most trainers feel that a sharp command or scolding tone of voice can do the job. Act quickly and consistently, and soon a word and a look will be enough.

■ Should you allow your pet to breed?

Many think it is cruel to deny breeding. As a result, we now have 25 million stray cats in America as testimony to our "kindness." We have millions of other unwanted, hungry animals because pet owners didn't want to be "cruel."

Unless you are prepared to give the young a home, we urge that you have your pet painlessly neutered just at maturity. It will live longer and be easier to control. It will not be frustrated.

■ Should you give a child a pet as a gift?

Of course, if—

If the parents agree and will take responsibility for its care.

If the child will be taught to respect the animal as a fellow, feeling creature. Many a child has hurt or killed a small animal by careless play. You must find out what the pet needs and teach this to the child.

If the animal is a suitable pet, not a holiday toy doomed to early death.

■ Should you give an unwanted pet a "sporting chance" for life?

Your circumstances may no longer allow for a pet. But it is cruel to abandon him, as so many do, thinking he will manage somehow.

He will live—for a while hungry, exhausted, bewildered—until accident, wild animals, or exposure end his torture. If you can't find a home for him, take him to your animal shelter. Perhaps he will be adopted. If not, at least he can be spared a cruel, losing fight.

■ Should you adopt a homeless animal?

But is he homeless?

Call your animal shelter. Check around your community. An anxious owner may be waiting. If not, you may adopt the pet in good conscience.

Never, never adopt young birds or wild animals, however. Very knowing people may be able to handle them properly, but for most people to try is cruel.

■ Do you doctor your sick pets?

If so, are you a veterinarian?

Experienced owners may tell distemper from a cold, or stomach upset from feline enteritis. But most can't. It is appalling how many pets reach a veterinarian too late to be saved. It is cruel to keep a pet from medical attention.

■ Should you shower a new pet with attention?

No. A new young pet should be given time alone. Kittens and puppies are often exhausted or terrified by too much play with children or too many demands to perform. Give the pet hours without strain.

■ Should you choose a house for your pet because of its beauty?

This is one of the most common cruelties. Don't assume a commercial manufacturer knows what your particular animal needs.

Typical is the spherical fish bowl. Fish tanks need large surfaces exposed to air. A spherical bowl can suffocate fish. Many lovely cages are cruel. The smallest bird needs a cage at least two feet square to exercise.

The real answer to loving cruelty? Find out from experts what your pet really needs—in food, discipline, medicine, housing, and all the rest. Don't guess or assume. And remember, real kindness sometimes means denying things which affection makes us want to give.

MYSTERY

Every housebreaking seemed different—yet an alert detective came up with a single solution

case of the Capital Burglaries

By WILLIAM T. BRANNON

A secondhand dealer gave Williams his first real lead.

UNTIL THE WAVE of burglaries began late in 1941, Precinct 8, in the fashionable northwest section of Washington, D. C., had been relatively free of crime. Suddenly, Charles T. Williams, the precinct's only detective, had a full-time job solving the strange crimes.

All the victims were national figures—cabinet members, high government officials, bankers, manufacturers—whose homes had been entered while they were away from Washington. There appeared to be at least three gangs at work.

One group concentrated on silverware but passed up other articles of value. A second group took no silver but carried away diamonds, valuable jewelry, objects of art, and cash. A third group of burglars apparently spent hours on a job and had a gay party—emptying liquor bottles, leaving lipstick-smudged glasses—while it removed anything that wasn't nailed down, such as cameras, radios, cuff links, and jewelry.

The burglaries had just one thing in common: in every case, cigarettes had been smoked, and some of the butts had been ground into expensive Oriental rugs.

An unusual facet of the case was that none of the stolen articles had been offered for sale in Washington. Though the capital had no pawnshops, secondhand dealers fulfilled the same purpose by buying jewelry and merchandise outright, then holding it for a reasonable time for resale. These dealers made regular, detailed reports to the Washington police. Pawnshops in nearby cities in Maryland and Virginia also reported to the Washington police. But none reported articles listed by Williams as stolen.

Seemingly stymied, Williams went over the burglary reports again and re-examined the evidence found at each home—the cigarette butts, the empty liquor bottles, the lipstick-smudged highball glasses. Then Williams got an idea: maybe there was only one burglar! Maybe he had staged the various entries carefully to make it appear that different gangs were at work! But how was he to find one man among the millions in the metropolitan area?

Williams went to headquarters and dug out the reports of dealers for several months. He began studying the lists of merchandise sold, the names and addresses of the sellers. He looked at one, passed it up, then came back to it. Several small items had been sold by a man who gave his name as Ernest Clauson and his address as 1427 M Street Northwest. The detective knew Washington and he doubted there was any such address. A check proved him right.

Why had a phony address been given unless the articles were stolen? Was the name fictitious, too?

The dealer who had bought the items from Clauson still had them—cuff links, a piece of dental gold, and a gold nosepiece. None had been listed as stolen in any of the burglaries, but there was a chance they had been stolen and not listed. Williams recovered the articles from the dealer and began by canvassing the burglary victims.

After several fruitless calls, one victim said: "Yes, those are mine. I neglected to list them."

With a definite line on the burglar at last, Williams began looking for Ernest Clauson. He was not listed in the phone directories of Washington or nearby cities.

Williams had learned that people who give phony addresses often use right numbers but fictitious streets. He began looking up streets on which the number 1427 existed. It appeared on several northwest streets, and he tried them all. The last was N Street Northwest. At that address, a rooming house, a man came to the door.

"You Mr. Clauson?" Williams inquired.

"Yes. I run this rooming house. You want a room?"

"No, but maybe you can help me." The detective told of the burglaries, of his fruitless search.

"I don't think I have a burglar living here," said Clauson, "but I sure will keep my eyes open."

CLAUSON WAS AFFABLE and Williams was in no hurry to leave. Finally, Williams reached in his pocket. "Got a cigarette? I'm all out."

"Sure, if you like these." He produced a pack of a rare brand of cork-tip cigarettes.

"Just what I've been looking for!" Williams said. "Come on, Clauson, we're going to the station!"

Clauson was held while patrolmen went into the rooming house. They nabbed a man sneaking out the back door, then searched the house. They found roomsful of loot from the burglaries—most of it packed in suitcases.

Ernest Clauson confessed he was the burglar in each of the different cases and bragged about how he had fooled the police by making it appear that there were several burglary gangs. The rooming house was an added touch. It was normal to see a suitcase being carried in or out of a rooming house, and no one would pay any attention.

The other man had plans for disposing of the stolen articles in New York and Philadelphia. He was convicted of receiving stolen property and sent to prison for five years. Clauson was convicted of the burglaries and sentenced to 15 years.

Detective Williams soon explained why he had been positive that only one man was involved: all the cigarette butts found in the various burglarized homes were the same rare brand of cork tips.

Our Hollywood correspondent had been a great fan of her actress mother, but reports hinted that Romy was quite different; here's what he learned when he interviewed Europe's hottest star By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

I WAS A BOY in Germany when I first saw Romy Schneider's mother, Magda Schneider—then the Doris Day of her country.

When Magda married Wolf Albach-Retty, an Austrian matinee idol, and they were blessed with a beautiful daughter, Romy (a contraction of Rose-Marie), their storybook romance seemed complete.

But life is no fairy tale, and Magda and Wolf split up in 1942, when Romy was four. After her parents' divorce, Romy was reared primarily by her grandparents. She didn't see her parents together again until 20 years later, when Otto Preminger—producer-director of "The Cardinal," in which Romy stars—arranged "a chance meeting" at a Vienna cafe where they were on location.

Like any fan of Magda's, I was curious to see how her offspring turned out. I'd seen Romy in "Boccaccio '70" and "The Trial." I'd heard glowing reports about her performance in the soon-to-be-released "The Victors." But I'd also heard less encouraging reports—such as the angry protestations of Germans who haven't forgiven Romy for leaving her lucrative film career in their country to settle in Paris and Monaco.

Romy was just 19 when she became fed up being an apple-cheeked, pleasantly plump Teutonic Shirley Temple in schmaltzy German movies and fled to Paris. There she costarred in "Christine" with newcomer Alain Delon. The film didn't take, but Alain did, and Romy's new ambition was to be an actress and woman who would fit in with her sophisticated new environment—and her new French boy friend.

For two years Romy all but disappeared from the face of Europe while perfecting her French, studying acting, and transforming herself into a sophisticated, chic Parisienne. Then came the break she'd hoped for—a play opposite Alain in which she portrayed a wicked woman. Romy liked such parts, and producers and her new public were intrigued by the result.

I had heard that Romy's new life had made her temperamental and hard to get along with. But I just couldn't believe that the girl who sprang from the cradle of Gemütlichkeit and who was the daughter of an actress I had adored could have turned into a little monster.

My first approach, however, was not reassuring. I had called Romy in Monaco from Los Angeles to set up an appointment. She agreed but was curt and businesslike. At $4 a minute, I didn't mind. Not yet.

When I reached Monte Carlo two weeks later, I phoned her home to arrange for our get-together. Romy informed me tersely that she was leaving for Paris.

"But I came a long way to see you!" I exclaimed.

"Some days I'm in Monte Carlo, some days in London or Rome or Paris. Tomorrow I'm going to Paris," she snapped. Then she relented a bit and added, "I'll be back the day after tomorrow. If you wish, I'll meet you at the beach club then."

Romy showed up almost on the dot, accompanied by her mother Magda, who had put on a few pounds from the way I remembered her but whose face and laughter retained their vibrance and good humor.

Romy was in blue jeans but quickly changed into a bikini that would have created a riot anywhere but Monte Carlo. Her figure could make Brigitte Bardot blush with envy. Her eyes were blue and sparkling, and her face belied her age and supposed sophistication. Without make-up, the 24-year-old Romy looked an angelic 18.

Romy suggested a swim and then embarrassed me by jumping into the cool Mediterranean ahead of me. She was as lighthearted, gigglish, and full of fun as a teenager on her first date.

But my first interview question—about future career plans—instantly threw her back into her shell. "I don't want to talk about my work! I don't like being interviewed; I'm always being misquoted."

"Okay—no more formal questions," I agreed.

As it turned out, I learned more about Romy this way than if she'd answered 100 carefully worded questions. The moment I became an acquaintance and, after a couple of days, possibly even a friend, she made a complete about-face and became relaxed, cheerful, unrestrained.

At 15, she had wanted to become a painter, but a chance to appear in a film with her mother quickly changed her plans. And when Romy grew into Germany's biggest box-office attraction, Mama continued to play the protective hen looking out for her chick. Magda chose her scripts, her wardrobe, her friends—until the day Romy rebelled and fled to Paris.

But her new self-appointed role of the sophisticate clashes head-on with her upbringing and background. I doubt that she really objected to the press as much as to the part she herself played, or pretended to play. I don't think she's really angry at anyone—except herself.

POSSIBLY THE MOST OBVIOUS indication of this conflict in Romy is evident in her relationship with her mother. When Romy first started to rebel, Magda had the good sense to step quietly out of the picture rather than interfere when she knew it could do no good. To her, Romy still is the little girl she held in her lap two decades ago. She calls her "Teddy Bear," good-naturedly listens to her whims, and protests mildly when Romy disagrees. But Magda is so fond of Romy that she will not let a disagreement lead to an open break. Apparently this attitude has paid dividends, for Romy continues to feel a need for her mother in times of crisis.

There is still a good deal of Viennese sentimentality in Romy. She suggested we have dinner at a small open-air restaurant on my third night in Monte Carlo. We hardly had finished our first course when the waiter leaned down to whisper something into Romy's ear. She nodded approvingly. A few minutes later, he handed her a crudely wrapped package. Romy thanked him and pulled a handful of francs out of her purse.

"And how much this time?" Magda asked.

"Just 60 francs," Romy told her as she unwrapped a very bad painting of a clown.

"Sixty francs for that?" Magda cried out.

"He needs the money for his mother," Romy explained simply. "She has cancer."

I had a feeling that anyone could come to Romy any time with a problem—true or imagined—and she would try to help out.

As far as I was concerned, Romy lived up to all the expectations I have had since I first heard that my favorite boyhood star gave birth to a beautiful daughter. But then, maybe I, too, am sentimental.

MYSTERY

Every housebreaking seemed different—yet an alert detective came up with a single solution

case of the Capital Burglaries

By WILLIAM T. BRANNON

A secondhand dealer gave Williams his first real lead.

UNTIL THE WAVE of burglaries began late in 1941, Precinct 8, in the fashionable northwest section of Washington, D. C., had been relatively free of crime. Suddenly, Charles T. Williams, the precinct's only detective, had a full-time job solving the strange crimes.

All the victims were national figures—cabinet members, high government officials, bankers, manufacturers—whose homes had been entered while they were away from Washington. There appeared to be at least three gangs at work.

One group concentrated on silverware but passed up other articles of value. A second group took no silver but carried away diamonds, valuable jewelry, objects of art, and cash. A third group of burglars apparently spent hours on a job and had a gay party—emptying liquor bottles, leaving lipstick-smudged glasses—while it removed anything that wasn't nailed down, such as cameras, radios, cuff links, and jewelry.

The burglaries had just one thing in common: in every case, cigarettes had been smoked, and some of the butts had been ground into expensive Oriental rugs.

An unusual facet of the case was that none of the stolen articles had been offered for sale in Washington. Though the capital had no pawnshops, secondhand dealers fulfilled the same purpose by buying jewelry and merchandise outright, then holding it for a reasonable time for resale. These dealers made regular, detailed reports to the Washington police. Pawnshops in nearby cities in Maryland and Virginia also reported to the Washington police. But none reported articles listed by Williams as stolen.

Seemingly stymied, Williams went over the burglary reports again and re-examined the evidence found at each home—the cigarette butts, the empty liquor bottles, the lipstick-smudged highball glasses. Then Williams got an idea: maybe there was only one burglar! Maybe he had staged the various entries carefully to make it appear that different gangs were at work! But how was he to find one man among the millions in the metropolitan area?

Williams went to headquarters and dug out the reports of dealers for several months. He began studying the lists of merchandise sold, the names and addresses of the sellers. He looked at one, passed it up, then came back to it. Several small items had been sold by a man who gave his name as Ernest Clauson and his address as 1427 M Street Northwest. The detective knew Washington and he doubted there was any such address. A check proved him right.

Why had a phony address been given unless the articles were stolen? Was the name fictitious, too?

The dealer who had bought the items from Clauson still had them—cuff links, a piece of dental gold, and a gold nosepiece. None had been listed as stolen in any of the burglaries, but there was a chance they had been stolen and not listed. Williams recovered the articles from the dealer and began by canvassing the burglary victims.

After several fruitless calls, one victim said: "Yes, those are mine. I neglected to list them."

With a definite line on the burglar at last, Williams began looking for Ernest Clauson. He was not listed in the phone directories of Washington or nearby cities.

Williams had learned that people who give phony addresses often use right numbers but fictitious streets. He began looking up streets on which the number 1427 existed. It appeared on several northwest streets, and he tried them all. The last was N Street Northwest. At that address, a rooming house, a man came to the door.

"You Mr. Clauson?" Williams inquired.

"Yes. I run this rooming house. You want a room?"

"No, but maybe you can help me." The detective told of the burglaries, of his fruitless search.

"I don't think I have a burglar living here," said Clauson, "but I sure will keep my eyes open."

CLAUSON WAS AFFABLE and Williams was in no hurry to leave. Finally, Williams reached in his pocket. "Got a cigarette? I'm all out."

"Sure, if you like these." He produced a pack of a rare brand of cork-tip cigarettes.

"Just what I've been looking for!" Williams said. "Come on, Clauson, we're going to the station!"

Clauson was held while patrolmen went into the rooming house. They nabbed a man sneaking out the back door, then searched the house. They found roomsful of loot from the burglaries—most of it packed in suitcases.

Ernest Clauson confessed he was the burglar in each of the different cases and bragged about how he had fooled the police by making it appear that there were several burglary gangs. The rooming house was an added touch. It was normal to see a suitcase being carried in or out of a rooming house, and no one would pay any attention.

The other man had plans for disposing of the stolen articles in New York and Philadelphia. He was convicted of receiving stolen property and sent to prison for five years. Clauson was convicted of the burglaries and sentenced to 15 years.

Detective Williams soon explained why he had been positive that only one man was involved: all the cigarette butts found in the various burglarized homes were the same rare brand of cork tips.

ILLUSTRATION BY NORMAN BAER

The woman who saw it all, Mrs. Kirchgasler, proudly displays the piece of bed sheet that records the exact birth times and manner of the quints' delivery.

A nurse who was in the delivery room and who later took care of the Fischer quintuplets tells the whole dramatic, heart-warming story

By MRS. ALFRED KIRCHGASLER
as told to Del Griffin,
Aberdeen (S.D.) American-News

I HAVE A PIECE of bed sheet to remind me of the momentous Saturday when I cared for five very famous newborn babies—the Fischer quintuplets.

On that cloth are written the sex, the arrival time, and the manner of delivery of each of the quints. But even without the cloth, I am sure I could never forget that morning when I placed identification bracelets on the arms of those pink and crying babies!

I have been a registered nurse for 25 years and worked in the maternity section of St. Luke's Hospital in Aberdeen, S.D., for four years before becoming a clinical instructor six years ago.

As the assistant clinical instructor for the maternity unit of the Presentation School of Nursing, I supervise the hospital experience of the students and instruct them in the procedures on the maternity floor.

Mrs. Andrew (Mary Ann) Fischer came to St. Luke's Hospital Wednesday, Sept. 11, three days before the birth of the quints. I assigned one of our students to take care of her, and I saw her often during the following days.

She is a remarkable person—just the right kind of mother to have quints. In spite of all that has happened, she still is beautifully composed.

If I were to describe Mrs. Fischer, it would be as a woman who is humble, calm, and capable of handling any situation. She is steady and strong—physically, mentally, and spiritually strong. One of her first requests the morning of the births was that Sacred Heart medals be placed on the isolettes which housed her infants.

On the day she entered the hospital Mrs. Fischer learned that quintuplet births were expected. She was surprised; she had realized that multiple births were possible, but she did not think there would be that many! During the next few days, I felt she was concerned about the future. She was, I think, apprehensive that the babies might come early and not survive. She was more concerned about them than herself.

When I first heard of the impending births, I felt it was unbelievable—a miracle—that something like that could happen in Aberdeen. I am always thrilled each time a baby is born; each is a miracle; each is a thrill. It happens every time I am in the delivery room. We all wait for that little cry, and then we are relieved. Each birth is a miracle, but this would be a miracle five times over. I felt privileged to be there, and I asked to be called when the births occurred.

The hospital notified me at 1:45 a.m. that Saturday, Sept. 14. I left immediately, picked up another nurse, and arrived in the delivery room between the time the first baby was delivered and the time the second baby came.

Mrs. Fischer, delivering without anesthetic, was beautifully calm and composed. She is physically capable of such delivery. She never screamed or cried out all the while I was there.

No Sedation or Anesthetic Was Used

The births were not "natural" in the sense the word is often used. There is a procedure for natural childbirth in which the mother is given training in breathing and relaxing and other things before the delivery. This was not the case with Mrs. Fischer. But the births were natural in the sense that she delivered the quintuplets without the aid of sedation or anesthetic. All premature babies here are delivered without anesthetic to protect the infant from depression resulting from lack of oxygen.

There was an anesthetist in the delivery room. He administered oxygen to the mother to reduce the chance of an oxygen shortage in the babies.

My piece of cloth gives this account of the births: 1:58 frank breech—girl; 2:03 LOA—girl; 2:14 double footling—girl; 2:39 double footling—boy; 3:01 double footling—girl.

The "double footling" description means the babies came with both feet first; "frank breech" means the baby came with legs folded on the abdomen, knees under the chin, and buttocks first; "LOA" (left occipital anterior) means the baby came head first (normally).

The babies came in pink and crying. With premature babies—the quints were born at about seven months—this is not always the case. The infants were, in my opinion, wonderfully developed for the shorter gestation time.

Dr. James Berbos delivered the quints. Dr. Albin J. Janusz worked with Dr. Berbos in the actual delivery, and Dr. B. F. King took charge of the infants and brought them to the nursery.

I went to the nursery to take care of the babies. Despite the short time between deliveries, the task of caring for them went smoothly, much like a single delivery. The situation always was under control, and everything was well organized. I don't think any of us really felt the excitement until the next day.

Dr. King put the infants immediately into isolettes, machines which control the humidity, temperature, and oxygen and which have wristlet "portholes" which allow a person to reach inside the unit without letting in any outside air.

Babies "A" and "B" were put in one isolette. "C" was put in another, and "D" and "E" were placed together in a unit. They were later transferred to individual isolettes.

The infants' umbilical cords were not tied immediately because of the short time between deliveries. Later, in the nursery, I assisted Dr. Janusz in tying the cords.

Identified by Letters—A to E

The identification bracelets, which all babies at the hospital wear, carried the letters to identify the infants. The babies, of course, have since been given names. "A" is Mary Ann, "B" is Mary Magdalene, "C" is Mary Catherine, "D" is James Andrew, and "E" is Mary Margaret.

The babies were in good condition. The boy appeared stronger—and he was noticeably heavier. The girls all appeared to weigh about the

ROMY SCHNEIDER

LIKE MOTHER, LIKE DAUGHTER?

Romy Schneider in a scene from "The Victors." Her mother Magda (above) was a one-time favorite of German movie-goers.

Our Hollywood correspondent had been a great fan of her actress mother, but reports hinted that Romy was quite different; here's what he learned when he interviewed Europe's hottest star By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

I WAS A BOY in Germany when I first saw Romy Schneider's mother, Magda Schneider—then the Doris Day of her country.

When Magda married Wolf Albach-Retty, an Austrian matinee idol, and they were blessed with a beautiful daughter, Romy (a contraction of Rose-Marie), their storybook romance seemed complete.

But life is no fairy tale, and Magda and Wolf split up in 1942, when Romy was four. After her parents' divorce, Romy was reared primarily by her grandparents. She didn't see her parents together again until 20 years later, when Otto Preminger—producer-director of "The Cardinal," in which Romy stars—arranged "a chance meeting" at a Vienna cafe where they were on location.

Like any fan of Magda's, I was curious to see how her offspring turned out. I'd seen Romy in "Boccaccio '70" and "The Trial." I'd heard glowing reports about her performance in the soon-to-be-released "The Victors." But I'd also heard less encouraging reports—such as the angry protestations of Germans who haven't forgiven Romy for leaving her lucrative film career in their country to settle in Paris and Monaco.

Romy was just 19 when she became fed up being an apple-cheeked, pleasantly plump Teutonic Shirley Temple in schmaltzy German movies and fled to Paris. There she costarred in "Christine" with newcomer Alain Delon. The film didn't take, but Alain did, and Romy's new ambition was to be an actress and woman who would fit in with her sophisticated new environment—and her new French boy friend.

For two years Romy all but disappeared from the face of Europe while perfecting her French, studying acting, and transforming herself into a sophisticated, chic Parisienne. Then came the break she'd hoped for—a play opposite Alain in which she portrayed a wicked woman. Romy liked such parts, and producers and her new public were intrigued by the result.

I had heard that Romy's new life had made her temperamental and hard to get along with. But I just couldn't believe that the girl who sprang from the cradle of Gemütlichkeit and who was the daughter of an actress I had adored could have turned into a little monster.

My first approach, however, was not reassuring. I had called Romy in Monaco from Los Angeles to set up an appointment. She agreed but was curt and businesslike. At $4 a minute, I didn't mind. Not yet.

When I reached Monte Carlo two weeks later, I phoned her home to arrange for our get-together. Romy informed me tersely that she was leaving for Paris.

"But I came a long way to see you!" I exclaimed.

"Some days I'm in Monte Carlo, some days in London or Rome or Paris. Tomorrow I'm going to Paris," she snapped. Then she relented a bit and added, "I'll be back the day after tomorrow. If you wish, I'll meet you at the beach club then."

Romy showed up almost on the dot, accompanied by her mother Magda, who had put on a few pounds from the way I remembered her but whose face and laughter retained their vibrance and good humor.

Romy was in blue jeans but quickly changed into a bikini that would have created a riot anywhere but Monte Carlo. Her figure could make Brigitte Bardot blush with envy. Her eyes were blue and sparkling, and her face belied her age and supposed sophistication. Without make-up, the 24-year-old Romy looked an angelic 18.

Romy suggested a swim and then embarrassed me by jumping into the cool Mediterranean ahead of me. She was as lighthearted, gigglish, and full of fun as a teenager on her first date.

But my first interview question—about future career plans—instantly threw her back into her shell. "I don't want to talk about my work! I don't like being interviewed; I'm always being misquoted."

"Okay—no more formal questions," I agreed.

As it turned out, I learned more about Romy this way than if she'd answered 100 carefully worded questions. The moment I became an acquaintance and, after a couple of days, possibly even a friend, she made a complete about-face and became relaxed, cheerful, unrestrained.

Most of Romy's problems stem from the fact that she's at war with herself. Her grandparents and her mother reared her with a protective curtain drawn tightly around her. She was always adored and pampered.

At 15, she had wanted to become a painter, but a chance to appear in a film with her mother quickly changed her plans. And when Romy grew into Germany's biggest box-office attraction, Mama continued to play the protective hen looking out for her chick. Magda chose her scripts, her wardrobe, her friends—until the day Romy rebelled and fled to Paris.

But her new self-appointed role of the sophisticate clashes head-on with her upbringing and background. I doubt that she really objected to the press as much as to the part she herself played, or pretended to play. I don't think she's really angry at anyone—except herself.

POSSIBLY THE MOST OBVIOUS indication of this conflict in Romy is evident in her relationship with her mother. When Romy first started to rebel, Magda had the good sense to step quietly out of the picture rather than interfere when she knew it could do no good. To her, Romy still is the little girl she held in her lap two decades ago. She calls her "Teddy Bear," good-naturedly listens to her whims, and protests mildly when Romy disagrees. But Magda is so fond of Romy that she will not let a disagreement lead to an open break. Apparently this attitude has paid dividends, for Romy continues to feel a need for her mother in times of crisis.

There is still a good deal of Viennese sentimentality in Romy. She suggested we have dinner at a small open-air restaurant on my third night in Monte Carlo. We hardly had finished our first course when the waiter leaned down to whisper something into Romy's ear. She nodded approvingly. A few minutes later, he handed her a crudely wrapped package. Romy thanked him and pulled a handful of francs out of her purse.

"And how much this time?" Magda asked.

"Just 60 francs," Romy told her as she unwrapped a very bad painting of a clown.

"Sixty francs for that?" Magda cried out.

"He needs the money for his mother," Romy explained simply. "She has cancer."

I had a feeling that anyone could come to Romy any time with a problem—true or imagined—and she would try to help out.

As far as I was concerned, Romy lived up to all the expectations I have had since I first heard that my favorite boyhood star gave birth to a beautiful daughter. But then, maybe I, too, am sentimental.

The miracle of your body, a beautiful instrument designed for experiencing, learning, caring, achieving.

The sweetness of water on thirsty lips and the silk of it on dusty skin.

The taste of bread, fruit, meat and the mingled caress of their fragrance.

Long grass under your toes. A bird in flight against a cloud. The soaring ache of the universe beyond the stars.

The release of rain and the awesome anger of thunder.

The satisfaction of seeking and finding the peace of fulfillment.

A CERTAIN ECSTACY at unspecified times and for unspecified reasons, yet somehow a justification for being.

A quick recognition of love in the lines of a face, the touch of hands, in words left unsaid, in an act of kindness with no other reason.

Seeing again the same home town, the same home, the same family as for the first time and seeing in them the full circle of existence.

The creation of a child or a place or a piece of something beyond self, giving your heart the right to beat for more than its own need.

The lights of man's night and the lights of God's night and you between, a partner of both.

The privilege of being allowed these years out of eternity to share the greatest adventure you can ever know:

Life itself.

A Colorful Flower Vase

By Ragna Eskil

Ask your mother to give you one of the prettiest empty glass bottles on her pantry shelf. Then ask your dad for a little of his left-over household paint.

Mix the paint well and pour it into the bottle until it is about one-half inch deep. Then tilt the bottle, and, as the paint runs down the sides, keep twisting it round and round so that the paint coats the inside evenly. Now hold the bottle upside down for several minutes until the excess paint drains off.

When the vase is dry (this may take a day or two), you might like to paste a pretty picture on it. Fill it with flowers, pods, or an attractive arrangement of dried grasses, and you have a gift that will surely please your mother or grandmother or a favorite friend.

Chopsticks!

By Betty Kahn

This trick takes skill. See how well you can do it. Put two empty glasses on a table just six inches apart. Take a dozen peanuts and put them in one glass. With two long pencils held like chopsticks, lift the peanuts out of one glass and transfer them to the other. The player who lifts the most peanuts before he drops one wins!

Blindman's Apple Hunt

By Donovan A. Moore

This is a game for two or three players. Place a number of apples on the floor. Blindfold the players and give each an empty paper bag. They drop to the floor on their hands and knees and scramble for the apples. Whoever has found the most at the end of three minutes is the winner.

Riddle

Four alike will do this stunt:
Two behind chase two in front.
Together they stop, together they start,
And are always the very same distance apart!

Answer:
The tires of an automobile.

The woman who saw it all, Mrs. Kirchgasler, proudly displays the piece of bed sheet that records the exact birth times and manner of the quints' delivery.

A nurse who was in the delivery room and who later took care of the Fischer quintuplets tells the whole dramatic, heart-warming story

By MRS. ALFRED KIRCHGASLER
as told to Del Griffin,
Aberdeen (S.D.) American-News

I HAVE A PIECE of bed sheet to remind me of the momentous Saturday when I cared for five very famous newborn babies—the Fischer quintuplets.

On that cloth are written the sex, the arrival time, and the manner of delivery of each of the quints. But even without the cloth, I am sure I could never forget that morning when I placed identification bracelets on the arms of those pink and crying babies!

I have been a registered nurse for 25 years and worked in the maternity section of St. Luke's Hospital in Aberdeen, S.D., for four years before becoming a clinical instructor six years ago.

As the assistant clinical instructor for the maternity unit of the Presentation School of Nursing, I supervise the hospital experience of the students and instruct them in the procedures on the maternity floor.

Mrs. Andrew (Mary Ann) Fischer came to St. Luke's Hospital Wednesday, Sept. 11, three days before the birth of the quints. I assigned one of our students to take care of her, and I saw her often during the following days.

She is a remarkable person—just the right kind of mother to have quints. In spite of all that has happened, she still is beautifully composed.

If I were to describe Mrs. Fischer, it would be as a woman who is humble, calm, and capable of handling any situation. She is steady and strong—physically, mentally, and spiritually strong. One of her first requests the morning of the births was that Sacred Heart medals be placed on the isolettes which housed her infants.

On the day she entered the hospital Mrs. Fischer learned that quintuplet births were expected. She was surprised; she had realized that multiple births were possible, but she did not think there would be that many! During the next few days, I felt she was concerned about the future. She was, I think, apprehensive that the babies might come early and not survive. She was more concerned about them than herself.

When I first heard of the impending births, I felt it was unbelievable—a miracle—that something like that could happen in Aberdeen. I am always thrilled each time a baby is born; each is a miracle; each is a thrill. It happens every time I am in the delivery room. We all wait for that little cry, and then we are relieved. Each birth is a miracle, but this would be a miracle five times over. I felt privileged to be there, and I asked to be called when the births occurred.

The hospital notified me at 1:45 a.m. that Saturday, Sept. 14. I left immediately, picked up another nurse, and arrived in the delivery room between the time the first baby was delivered and the time the second baby came.

Mrs. Fischer, delivering without anesthetic, was beautifully calm and composed. She is physically capable of such delivery. She never screamed or cried out all the while I was there.

No Sedation or Anesthetic Was Used

The births were not "natural" in the sense the word is often used. There is a procedure for natural childbirth in which the mother is given training in breathing and relaxing and other things before the delivery. This was not the case with Mrs. Fischer. But the births were natural in the sense that she delivered the quintuplets without the aid of sedation or anesthetic. All premature babies here are delivered without anesthetic to protect the infant from depression resulting from lack of oxygen.

There was an anesthetist in the delivery room. He administered oxygen to the mother to reduce the chance of an oxygen shortage in the babies.

My piece of cloth gives this account of the births: 1:58 frank breech—girl; 2:03 LOA—girl; 2:14 double footling—girl; 2:39 double footling—boy; 3:01 double footling—girl.

The "double footling" description means the babies came with both feet first; "frank breech" means the baby came with legs folded on the abdomen, knees under the chin, and buttocks first; "LOA" (left occipital anterior) means the baby came head first (normally).

The babies came in pink and crying. With premature babies—the quints were born at about seven months—this is not always the case. The infants were, in my opinion, wonderfully developed for the shorter gestation time.

Dr. James Berbos delivered the quints. Dr. Albin J. Janusz worked with Dr. Berbos in the actual delivery, and Dr. B. F. King took charge of the infants and brought them to the nursery.

I went to the nursery to take care of the babies. Despite the short time between deliveries, the task of caring for them went smoothly, much like a single delivery. The situation always was under control, and everything was well organized. I don't think any of us really felt the excitement until the next day.

Dr. King put the infants immediately into isolettes, machines which control the humidity, temperature, and oxygen and which have wristlet "portholes" which allow a person to reach inside the unit without letting in any outside air.

Babies "A" and "B" were put in one isolette. "C" was put in another, and "D" and "E" were placed together in a unit. They were later transferred to individual isolettes.

The infants' umbilical cords were not tied immediately because of the short time between deliveries. Later, in the nursery, I assisted Dr. Janusz in tying the cords.

Identified by Letters—A to E

The identification bracelets, which all babies at the hospital wear, carried the letters to identify the infants. The babies, of course, have since been given names. "A" is Mary Ann, "B" is Mary Magdalene, "C" is Mary Catherine, "D" is James Andrew, and "E" is Mary Margaret.

The babies were in good condition. The boy appeared stronger—and he was noticeably heavier. The girls all appeared to weigh about the

EVERY WEEK there's good reading in FAMILY WEEKLY

Dr. James Berbos delivered the quints.

QUINTS

same. They weren't weighed or cleaned up when they came from the delivery room. They were put into the isolettes immediately. Dr. Berbos said he thought their weights would range from 2½ pounds to 4 pounds. This turned out to be a very accurate prediction.

While the babies were being delivered, the anesthetist kept a record of their birth times and manner of delivery on a cloth sheet in the delivery room. Later, Mrs. Marguerite Dorman, supervisor of the maternity floor, made copies for each of us. There were about 14 people involved in the delivery and nursery work that morning.

After the delivery, Mrs. Fischer was exhausted. A nursing sister and I stayed with her to make sure she had absolute rest. She slept during the morning and by noon was more her usual self. It was about that time that flowers and telegrams (including one from President Kennedy) began arriving and she was able to appreciate them.

Later that day, I acted as one of the sponsors when the Most Rev. Lambert A. Hoch, the Roman Catholic bishop of Sioux Falls, baptized the babies.

The evening after the delivery, Mrs. Fischer went to the nursery in a wheel chair to see the babies. She was given ambulatory privileges the same night. Hers has been a good, normal recovery despite the fact that she had given birth to five babies.

In her hospital room she was sheltered from most of the public excitement about the quints. She did attend a news conference the next Tuesday. I think it took her a couple of days to realize the situation fully.

The Fischers impress me as a very close-knit family. Mr. and Mrs. Fischer are steady people, and I think their family is the most important thing in their lives. I am certain they will make every effort to give their children—all of them —a normal life.

Mr. Fischer told me he hoped the family could continue to enjoy the good life they had. This family life is something very precious to him. A day or two after the births, he was asked whether he might leave his farm home for a city home. He replied that he had chosen where they live to give his children a good place to grow up.

Mrs. Fischer is shy and reserved. When she talked in the hospital, it was about her children. She missed her five older ones at home, and she was anxious to see the quints and expressed concern for their well-being.

She is, I think, worried about the enormous responsibility of the new life she and her family face. But in spite of her concern, I am sure she will be able to cope with whatever the future may bring.

Dad Andrew Fischer—with three of his five other children, Julie, 6 (left), Danny, 8, and Charlotte, 7—was wondering how he would support his new brood when help poured in.

I was just thinking...

IF THE SEED which was to become you had never flowered, do you know what you would have missed?

The sun's gold blessing on your head.

The sound of your own voice, your own laughter, your own tears.

The miracle of your body, a beautiful instrument designed for experiencing, learning, caring, achieving.

The sweetness of water on thirsty lips and the silk of it on dusty skin.

The taste of bread, fruit, meat and the mingled caress of their fragrance.

Long grass under your toes. A bird in flight against a cloud. The soaring ache of the universe beyond the stars.

The release of rain and the awesome anger of thunder.

The satisfaction of seeking and finding the peace of fulfillment.

A CERTAIN ECSTACY at unspecified times and for unspecified reasons, yet somehow a justification for being.

A quick recognition of love in the lines of a face, the touch of hands, in words left unsaid, in an act of kindness with no other reason.

Seeing again the same home town, the same home, the same family as for the first time and seeing in the them the full circle of existence.

The creation of a child or a place or a piece of something beyond self, giving your heart the right to beat for more than its own need.

The lights of man's night and the lights of God's night and you between, a partner of both.

The privilege of being allowed these years out of eternity to share the greatest adventure you can ever know:

Life itself.

A Colorful Flower Vase

By Ragna Eskil

Ask your mother to give you one of the prettiest empty glass bottles on her pantry shelf. Then ask your dad for a little of his left-over household paint.

Mix the paint well and pour it into the bottle until it is about one-half inch deep. Then tilt the bottle, and, as the paint runs down the sides, keep twisting it round and round so that the paint coats the inside evenly. Now hold the bottle upside down for several minutes until the excess paint drains off.

When the vase is dry (this may take a day or two), you might like to paste a pretty picture on it. Fill it with flowers, pods, or an attractive arrangement of dried grasses, and you have a gift that will surely please your mother or grandmother or a favorite friend.

Chopsticks!

By Betty Kahn

This trick takes skill. See how well you can do it. Put two empty glasses on a table just six inches apart. Take a dozen peanuts and put them in one glass. With two long pencils held like chopsticks, lift the peanuts out of one glass and transfer them to the other. The player who lifts the most peanuts before he drops one wins!

Blindman's Apple Hunt

By Donovan A. Moore

This is a game for two or three players. Place a number of apples on the floor. Blindfold the players and give each an empty paper bag. They drop to the floor on their hands and knees and scramble for the apples. Whoever has found the most at the end of three minutes is the winner.

Riddle

Four alike will do this stunt:
Two behind chase two in front.
Together they stop, together they start,
And are always the very same distance apart!

Answer:
The tires of an automobile.

3. Add 1 cup of the sauce to a mixture of the mushrooms, pepper, oregano, ham, and olives. Toss lightly until well mixed.

4. Lightly butter a shallow baking dish. Spoon and spread enough cream sauce over bottom of baking dish to make a thin layer.

6. Heat in 350°F oven for 15 min. Remove the dish from oven and uncover.

7. Place baking dish on broiler rack with top of crêpes 3 to 4 in. from heat source; broil 3 to 4 min., or until cheese is lightly browned. 8 servings

Crêpes

2 teaspoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon butter, melted

1. Blend the flour, sugar, and salt together; set aside. Beat eggs, milk, and butter together. Add egg mixture to dry ingredients and beat with rotary beater until the mixture is smooth.

2. Heat a lightly buttered 6-in. skillet; pour in just enough batter to cover bottom (about 2 tablespoons). Immediately tilt skillet back and forth to spread batter thinly and evenly.

3. Cook each crêpe over medium heat until lightly browned on bottom and firm to touch on top. Loosen edges with spatula. Turn and brown second side. (It should not be necessary to butter skillet for each crêpe.) Transfer to baking pan and set in warm oven until all crêpes are cooked.

4. Fill immediately. 8 crêpes

Italian Meat Stew

¼ cup olive oil
1 lb. lean beef stew meat, cut in 1½-in. cubes
1 lb. lean lamb stew meat, cut in 1½-in. cubes
1 1-lb., 12-oz. can tomatoes
1½ cups boiling water
1½ cups chopped onion
1 cup diced celery
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon black pepper
4 large potatoes, pared and quartered (about 3 cups)
5 large carrots, pared and cut in strips (about 2 cups)
1 teaspoon basil, crushed
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
½ cup water
¼ cup flour

1. Heat oil in a large sauce pot or Dutch oven; add meat and brown on all sides.

2. Add tomatoes, boiling water, onion, celery, salt, and pepper to sauce pot. Cover and simmer 1 to 1½ hrs., or until meat is almost tender.

3. Add potatoes, carrots, basil, and garlic powder. Simmer 45 min. longer, or until meat and vegetables are tender when pierced with a fork.

4. Blend the ½ cup water and flour together to make a smooth paste. Gradually add to meat and vegetable mixture, stirring constantly, and bring to boiling. Continue to stir and boil 1 to 2 min., or until sauce is thickened. (Leftover sauce may be served the following day on mashed potatoes.) 8 to 10 servings

WHEN SOMEONE'S COUNTING ON YOU . . . YOU CAN COUNT ON LIFE INSURANCE

During a lull in the conversation at a ladies' luncheon, one guest nodded to a woman passing her table, then turned to her companion. "She's such a wonderful girl. I've never met anybody who said anything bad about Meg."

The woman's companion nodded. "That's true. Let's talk about somebody else."

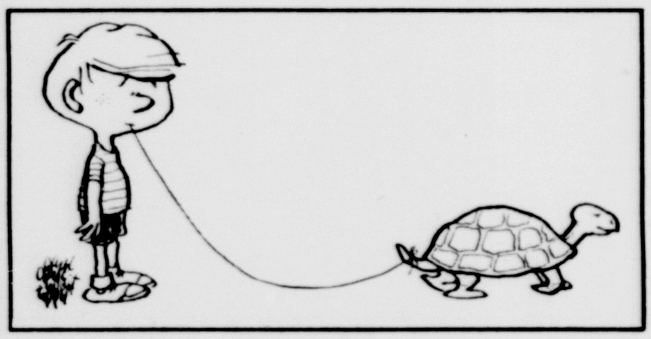

—Ginitta Brevole

The weary mother of a large and hungry brood was being interviewed by a researcher for a kitchen-range company. He wanted to know what improvements she would like to see in new stoves.

"I'll tell you," she replied, "I'd like one that played, say, "Oh, Marie" when I'm cooking spaghetti and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" when it's stew and "Home on the Range" for steak."

"You like music when you cook?" the researcher asked.

"No, but that would stop every kid who tramps through here from asking: 'Hi, Mom, what's cooking?' " —James Shurluck

The Score on Décor

The house has that bare,
Uncluttered look,
No bonbon dish,
No vase, no book,
No knick, no knack,
No cigarette,
And not one African Violet.

It's not that this spare
Décor's the rage,
But Baby has reached
The toddling stage.

—Ethel Jacobson

The new bride and her mother went shopping in the supermarket every day, and the young woman unburdened herself of the perplexities of wedded life. But what puzzled the mother most were the bride's buying habits. At last she could restrain herself no longer.

"Every day this week," she said, "you've bought a can of tuna."

"Yes, I know," the bride replied. "I've been giving John tuna every night—and he still wants to go fishing over the weekend!"

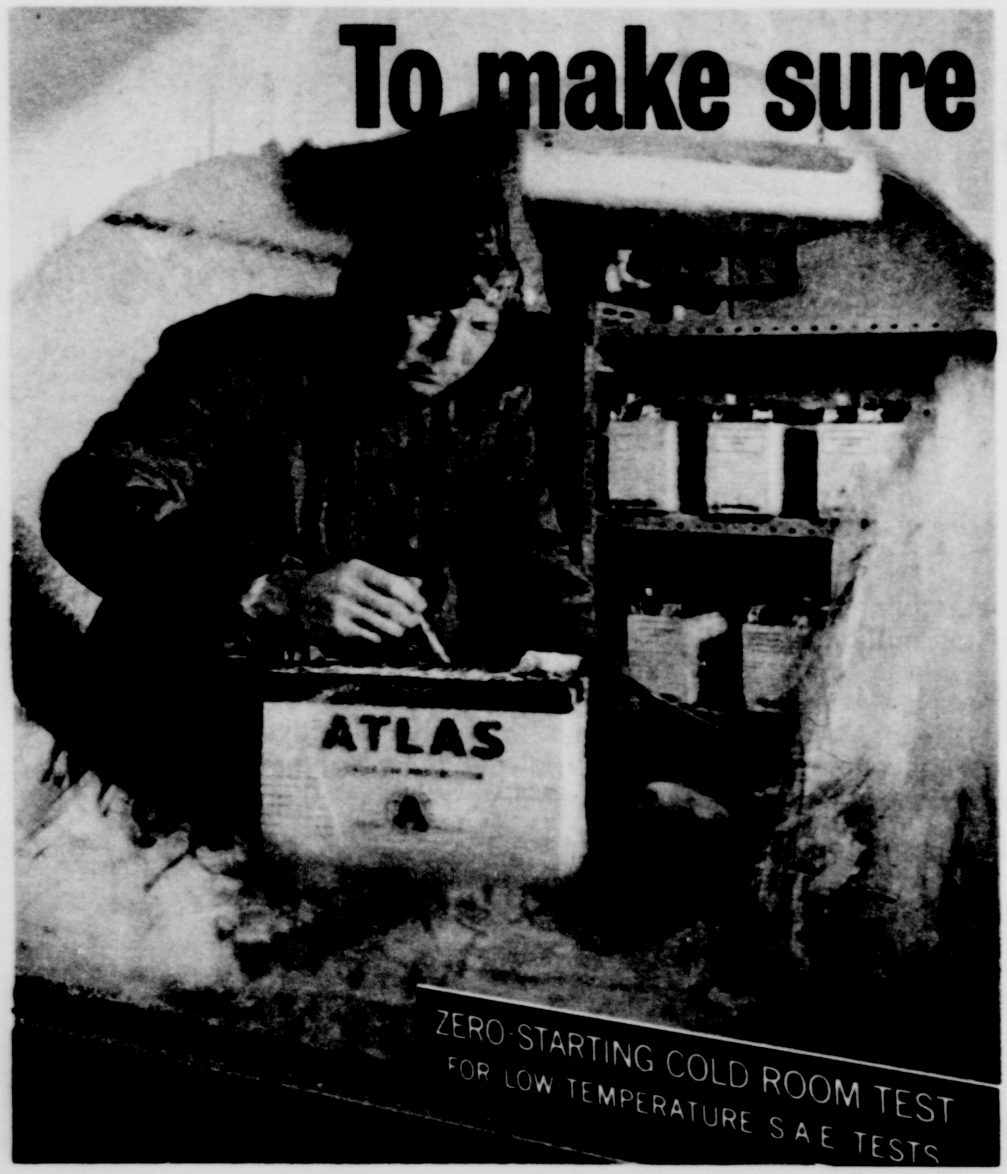

—Giles H. Runyon

A cattle baron from the Southwest was visiting his son's college campus for the first time, and he took his wife on tour of the street where all the sororities and fraternities were located.

"Look at that!" he exclaimed, pointing to the neon signs with Greek letters on each house. "What a good idea—everybody has his cattle brand in lights!" —Herm Albright

One brother was ambitious and hard-working and became a successful businessman. The other was lazy, constantly in debt, and an embarrassment to his family. The successful brother tried to ignore the ne'er-do-well, and this so irritated the latter that he cornered him at his office one day and told him off:

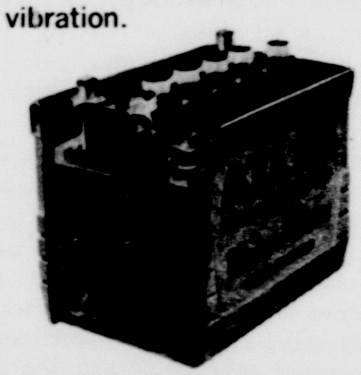

"I don't understand your attitude! You're a stuck-up snob. If anybody has a right to be stuck up, it's me—look at the successful brother I have! You? Why, your brother is nothing but a bum!" —G. B. Bangheart

EVERY WEEK there's good reading in FAMILY WEEKLY

Dr. James Berbos delivered the quints.

same. They weren't weighed or cleaned up when they came from the delivery room. They were put into the isolettes immediately. Dr. Berbos said he thought their weights would range from 2½ pounds to 4 pounds. This turned out to be a very accurate prediction.

While the babies were being delivered, the anesthetist kept a record of their birth times and manner of delivery on a cloth sheet in the delivery room. Later, Mrs. Marguerite Dorman, supervisor of the maternity floor, made copies for each of us. There were about 14 people involved in the delivery and nursery work that morning.

After the delivery, Mrs. Fischer was exhausted. A nursing sister and I stayed with her to make sure she had absolute rest. She slept during the morning and by noon was more her usual self. It was about that time that flowers and telegrams (including one from President Kennedy) began arriving and she was able to appreciate them.

Later that day, I acted as one of the sponsors when the Most Rev. Lambert A. Hoch, the Roman Catholic bishop of Sioux Falls, baptized the babies.

The evening after the delivery, Mrs. Fischer went to the nursery in a wheel chair to see the babies. She was given ambulatory privileges the same night. Hers has been a good, normal recovery despite the fact that she had given birth to five babies.

In her hospital room she was sheltered from most of the public excitement about the quints. She did attend a news conference the next Tuesday. I think it took her a couple of days to realize the situation fully.

The Fischers impress me as a very close-knit family. Mr. and Mrs. Fischer are steady people, and I think their family is the most important thing in their lives. I am certain they will make every effort to give their children—all of them—a normal life.

Mr. Fischer told me he hoped the family could continue to enjoy the good life they had. This family life is something very precious to him. A day or two after the births, he was asked whether he might leave his farm home for a city home. He replied that he had chosen where they live to give his children a good place to grow up.

Mrs. Fischer is shy and reserved. When she talked in the hospital, it was about her children. She missed her five older ones at home, and she was anxious to see the quints and expressed concern for their well-being.

She is, I think, worried about the enormous responsibility of the new life she and her family face. But in spite of her concern, I am sure she will be able to cope with whatever the future may bring.

tinue to stir and bring mixture to boiling; cook 1 to 2 min. longer.

3. Add 1 cup of the sauce to a mixture of the mushrooms, pepper, oregano, ham, and olives. Toss lightly until well mixed.

4. Lightly butter a shallow baking dish. Spoon and spread enough cream sauce over bottom of baking dish to make a thin layer.

5. Spoon 2 to 3 tablespoons of the filling onto the center of each crêpe. Fold one edge of crêpe over filling and roll up. Place filled crêpes in baking dish with open edges down. Spoon remaining sauce over crêpes; sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Cover dish.

6. Heat in 350°F oven for 15 min. Remove the dish from oven and uncover.

7. Place baking dish on broiler rack with top of crêpes 3 to 4 in. from heat source; broil 3 to 4 min., or until cheese is lightly browned. 8 servings

Crêpes

½ cup flour
2 teaspoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, beaten
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon butter, melted

1. Blend the flour, sugar, and salt together; set aside. Beat eggs, milk, and butter together. Add egg mixture to dry ingredients and beat with rotary beater until the mixture is smooth.

2. Heat a lightly buttered 6-in. skillet; pour in just enough batter to cover bottom (about 2 tablespoons). Immediately tilt skillet back and forth to spread batter thinly and evenly.

3. Cook each crêpe over medium heat until lightly browned on bottom and firm to touch on top. Loosen edges with spatula. Turn and brown second side. (It should not be necessary to butter skillet for each crêpe.) Transfer to baking pan and set in warm oven until all crêpes are cooked.

4. Fill immediately. 8 crêpes

Italian Meat Stew

¼ cup olive oil
1 lb. lean beef stew meat, cut in 1½-in. cubes
1 lb. lean lamb stew meat, cut in 1½-in. cubes
1 1-lb., 12-oz. can tomatoes
1½ cups boiling water
1½ cups chopped onion
1 cup diced celery
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon black pepper
4 large potatoes, pared and quartered (about 3 cups)
5 large carrots, pared and cut in strips (about 2 cups)
1 teaspoon basil, crushed
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
½ cup water
¼ cup flour

1. Heat oil in a large sauce pot or Dutch oven; add meat and brown on all sides.

2. Add tomatoes, boiling water, onion, celery, salt, and pepper to sauce pot. Cover and simmer 1 to 1½ hrs., or until meat is almost tender.

3. Add potatoes, carrots, basil, and garlic powder. Simmer 45 min. longer, or until meat and vegetables are tender when pierced with a fork.

4. Blend the ½ cup water and flour together to make a smooth paste. Gradually add to meat and vegetable mixture, stirring constantly, and bring to boiling. Continue to stir and boil 1 to 2 min., or until sauce is thickened. (Leftover sauce may be served the following day on mashed potatoes.) 8 to 10 servings

The Hams Who Save Sight

A cornea is needed to prevent a child's blindness, but where can one be found? These amateur radio operators can be relied on for the answer

By CHARLES and BONNIE REMSBERG

Joe Kaniuk, one of the Eyeball Network's 25 volunteers, checks with local eye bank for emergencies.

LAST MARCH, a two-year-old girl in Oklahoma City lived for hours in a terrible shadow.

Her eye had accidentally brushed against the hot tip of her father's cigarette. Unless surgeons could remove the damaged tissue and transplant a fresh cornea within the next few hours, the stricken youngster would lose vision in her injured eye.

The eye bank nearest her home had no cornea available. No interoffice communication exists among the 60-some eye banks scattered across the U. S. Time could easily run out before the costly chore of tracking down an eye in another city could be completed by telephone.

Thanks to a remarkable group of amateur radio operators, however, a cornea was found within hours, and the child's sight was saved.

The "hams," calling themselves the "Eyeball Network," form the first and most efficient link between U. S. eye banks. Their dramatic dedication could someday save you or your children from blindness in the wake of sudden tragedy.

The network's 25 volunteer members in 16 cities are notified at any hour by their local eye banks of emergency needs or of surplus corneas. Then, twice daily, at 7 a.m. and 8 p.m. (CDT), the hams go on the air at 3970 and 3963 kilocycles to exchange information.

When the Oklahoma child was injured, Travis Harris, that city's network representative, broadcast the girl's plight during the morning roll call. No network members knew of extra corneas at that time, but each reported the emergency to the nearest bank.

Two hours later, an elderly Chicago eye donor died. His eyes were surgically removed for use by the eye bank of the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness. Because there were no known emergencies in Illinois, the bank turned to the case from Oklahoma, reported that morning by one of the Chicago area hams, Joe Kaniuk of suburban Morton Grove.

Now because of the hams' relay, one of the donor's eyes was specially packaged and flown to Oklahoma City to aid the little girl.

Since the network was organized in December, 1962, some 35 similar emergencies have been met. In addition, the hams have helped secure 25 "surplus" corneas for use in planned operations.

"If it hadn't been for the 'Eyeball Network,'" says Corinne Cloppas of the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, "more than one person would have been condemned to blindness."

Eye injuries must be corrected swiftly, or irreparable complications will develop. Also a donor's eyes must be utilized within 36 to 48 hours of his death if corneal transplants are to be effective. Time and again, the hams' ability to establish simultaneous contact with a variety of cities has proved the best means of bringing together persons threatened with blindness and the eyes of persons who wished them to be useful after death.

RECENTLY WE LISTENED to a network roll call over Joe Kaniuk's ham equipment and heard factory owner Ted Hunter of Iowa City tell how he and a fellow ham, Dr. Alson Braley, had conceived the idea.

"Doc Braley is the head of the ophthalmalogy department at the University of Iowa," Hunter explained. "Some years ago, a patient already blind in one eye lost sight in his second eye because no cornea was available for a transplant. It was a terrible thing, and it haunted both of us.

"We knew some inexpensive system of communications was needed between eye banks. One bank might need an eye desperately while another would have one going to waste and not know of the other's need. What was fast and free?—well, ham radio was the answer."

Hunter and Braley began discussing the net with hams in areas where banks were located. Kaniuk heard their repeated calls about a "new way to help people see" as he was listening to his set in bed one night. Others listened, too, and soon the network began taking shape.

One man in Iowa needed a fast transplant because his cornea had ruptured. The emergency call went out at 7 a.m. By 10, a cornea was on its way to his doctor.

In Kansas, a girl's cornea was diseased and threatening to burst. As she was rushed to a hospital, the net's amazingly swift relay located a donated eye so that surgeons could operate before her sight blacked out.

"IF YOU WANT to get a spine-tingling sensation, just be a network ham meeting one of these people you've helped," Ted Hunter told us. "It's hard to describe how it feels when someone looks at you and says, 'You have saved my sight.'"

For some of the hams, the thanks of a patient carries special impact. Travis Harris, for example, is himself totally blind.

"I was 10 years old when my eyes were damaged in a stove explosion at school," he told us over the air. "I could still see light for 25 years. Then glaucoma developed and I became blind.

"When I was first hurt, a corneal transplant might have saved my sight. Unfortunately, the technique hadn't been devised yet. But now that it has, one of the biggest satisfactions I get out of life is helping others see again."

That sums up the attitude of all the hams on the "Eyeball Network." Some West Coast hams must rise before 5 a.m. to make roll call; others adjust social and business schedules to accommodate the regular broadcasts. Yet in talking to many of them we didn't hear these inconveniences mentioned once.

All referred only to their "good fortune" in being able to use a hobby to perform a needed public service.
